Hurricane of '38

The hurricane which struck New England 50 years ago this month on September 21, 1938 is still called the "hurricane of the century." No other storm in memory has matched its fury. The above scene was at the North Wilmington Nursery, where Bill Andrews was sitting in his Ford eating a sandwich. Lunch was interrupted when a large tree fell on the car. His best friend, Joe Barton, cut away the branches and freed Bill. Other photos of the 1938 hurricane are on pages 15 and 16 of this paper.

Town to pursue legal action against Horan?

by Arlene Surprenant

For the first time in a public session, the question of pursuing legal action against former Superintendent of Schools Robert Horan for a shortfall in the FY'88 budget was raised.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Wilmington Finance Committee, Walter Kaminski brought up the issue with visiting school committee members. Kaminski asked Shirley Callan, James Demos, and Bob Surran if the question of taking legal action had ever been considered by their board since the budget problems are a reflection on Horan's job performance. Committeemen replied there had been no such discussion and they had not yet held anyone responsible.

As a voter and taxpayer, Kaminski urged the school board to consider legal options and seek direction from the district attorney's office.

"You're in an overrun position. Who's going to pay for it?" he asked.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said any discussion on possible legal action should only take place in executive session.

A good part of the evening was devoted to a suggestion by Kaminski to have an outside firm conduct an operational audit. Unlike a financial audit, the operational audit would look at school department procedures and ways to best safeguard the assets of the town in the future. Those in attendance favored the idea, especially when Stapczynski pointed out it could probably be funded with the $20,000 set aside for the annual audit.

Kaminski strongly recommended an outside firm handle the job to maintain objectivity and avoid any political overtones. Fincom members felt it would be beneficial to have the school committee unite behind the audit. Members of the school committee had twice voted against motions by Callan to conduct an independent audit of school books, largely because of the expense to the system. The three committeemen agreed to bring the suggestion back to their board.

Admitting "we're right in the middle of a mess," Kaminski and fellow fincom members struggled with ways to resolve some of the budget problems and assure residents a crisis of such proportions will never occur again. They agreed with Stapczynski that the deficit should be viewed as "a town problem." They felt it would require cooperation of all parties to rebuild the "integrity" of the school department.

Mark Lutz observed that everything seems to be "in complete turmoil," but he was especially concerned that some school personnel and the public still don't realize spending can continue on the current FY '89 budget. He emphasized that only outstanding bills from the FY'88 budget, which ended June 30, were not being paid at this time. It was mentioned that if voters did not okay a transfer of funds in November, vendors would have legal recourse to obtain any money owed. This avenue would reportedly result in more expense to the school department because of necessary attorney's fees.

Fincom Chairman Neil Waisnor noted that another warrant article may have to be drawn up for the special town meeting to appropriate more money for the current budget to help with the deficit. Some feared that because the 1989 budget is so tight, officials will be forced to cut the teaching staff.

Some latest developments concerning the unpaid vendors' bills came out in discussion.

Callan told those present that several home economics teachers were "mortified" Monday when they were refused credit at DeMoulas as they reached the cash register with food purchases for their classes and the Club 120 luncheon program. Callan told this paper she learned DeMoulas is owed approximately $1,200. Business Manager Peter DeRoeve verified that figure and the fact that many vendors are owed money because bills have been piling up on his desk since May. Those bills, he has said, needed Horan's signature before they could be paid.

Callan also pointed out that no credit had been extended for lumber for industrial arts classes and there are unpaid bills from the Xerox Corporation, primarily for maintenance of copiers. She said these situations concerned her because they directly affect students and teacher morale.

"At some point, they must have just stopped paying bills or paid just enough to keep the wolf from the door," Callan maintained.

Interim Supt. John Stella told the Town Crier that the lumber has been delivered, teachers can once again charge purchases at DeMoulas, and phone service, which was threatened last week, is still on in the system. Stella said the town accountant helped school officials compose a letter to vendors explaining the present predicament so they weren't kept in the dark. He added at this point he welcomes "any help we can get."

Selectmen by precinct, bylaw changes top town meeting agenda

by Arlene Surprenant

A transfer of funds to cover a school budget deficit, bylaw changes to open the door to town sponsored affordable housing projects, and selectmen elected by precincts will all be under consideration at a November 14 special town meeting.

To date, 12 articles are on the warrant, which will officially close September 23. The deadline for petitioned articles was last Friday.

Some officials are already anticipating a crowd at November's meeting because of the controversial type articles to be brought to voters. At Monday's board meeting, selectmen reviewed a draft copy of the warrant.

Article 12, to change the number of selectmen from five to seven and have one selectman elected from each of the six precincts and one at large, generated the most discussion. The article states that selectmen must reside in the precinct from which they are elected.

Selectmen said the article raised such procedural questions as whether voters only get to vote for their own selectman and the selectman at large or the whole board. They questioned the article's intent and the legal process to change the Town Charter. It was felt the town meeting vote is only the first step in a long process which sees the issue going to the state legislature and voters in a state election. Selectmen asked that town counsel review the article before the public hearing scheduled for November 1.

The article's petitioner, Dennis Volpe of Reed Street, said the intent of the article was to have better representation for all Wilmington citizens. He told the Town Crier he felt "residents are entitled to have a selectman who has a vested interest in their precinct and the neighborhood they live in." Volpe added that according to his article, citizens would only vote for the selectman from their precinct and the selectman at large.

Three of the articles on the warrant deal with amendments to zoning bylaws for planned residential development (PRD), inclusionary housing, and accessory apartments. The amendments, which have been under intense review by the Affordable Housing Task Force and the Wilmington Planning Board, primarily address ways to increase density to make it more attractive to developers to build affordable units for the town.

Three of the warrant articles relate to the Wilmington School System. One asks to transfer "a sum of money" to cover a budget shortfall in fiscal year 1988. To date, that amount comes to approximately $155,000. Articles seven and eight seek a change in the number of members serving on the school board from six to seven and five members, respectively. Proponents hope such a change will avoid any deadlock situations such as occurred over the chairmanship of the current committee. It was noted by selectmen that this is not a Town Charter amendment since the decision to change the board from three to six members was originally made in a town meeting in the 1920's.

Though it didn't lead to much discussion, article one is interesting in that it asks for a transfer of funds to allow the town to hire a professional planner and to do a 21E report or hazardous materials study on a South Main Street site adjacent to the old town dump. This same site was under consideration by the housing authority for a duplex affordable housing project. At that time, the feeling was to leave the site alone because it might place a burden on the taxpayer if hazardous materials were found on site.

Primary Thursday

A thin turnout is expected for the Massachusetts state primary on Thursday. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and remain open until 8 p.m.

The election will select candidates for the November ballot. In most cases, however, there is no contest for any office on the primary ballot. Voters must take either a Republican or a Democratic ballot, with voters registered in one party restricted to voting in that party. An independent voter may take either ballot, but in so doing will become enrolled as a voter of that party. If the voter wants to remain as an independent, a card must be filed with the town clerk.

Polls will be at the Town Hall for voters from precincts 1, 2 and 5. Voters from precincts 3, 4 and 6 will vote at the Wildwood School.

'Doc' Thomas chairs school committee

by Arlene Surprenant

After a four-month deadlock, the Wilmington School Committee has a new chairman.

Last Wednesday, Dr. Michael Thomas was elected to that position in a four to two vote of his board. Former chairman Tony Accardi and Bridget Zukas cast the only dissenting votes.

Bob Surran not only brought up the reorganization issue, which had been tabled during the summer, but provided the swing vote needed to break the continual three to three tie. Surran explained that he wanted to try again to elect a new chairman because the public has been having "reservations" about the committee's ability to function as a unit and has been referring to the board as a "committee divided."

Besides Thomas, the only other name placed in nomination for the chairmanship was Accardi's.

The positions of vice-chairman and secretary went to Surran and James Demos, respectively.

Fatal accident

A Woburn man was killed early Saturday morning when he wrapped his car around a double pole on Burlington Avenue in Wilmington. Scott D. Murphy, 20, of 40 Webster Ave. was pronounced dead at the Lahey Clinic in Burlington. His car was headed toward Burlington when it hit a pole near Harris Street about 2:30 a.m. Officer Chalifour had noticed the car driving without headlights on Main Street. He turned his cruiser around, but was not in pursuit of the car at the time of the accident.

Second call for outside audit denied

by Arlene Surprenant

A second call for an outside audit of the Wilmington School Department books was voted down five to one at last week's meeting of the school board as the budget deficit for last year climbed to $155,288.

Though some committeemen agreed with Shirley Callan that it was time to submit to an independent audit, they nonetheless backed off when told the cost would be in the neighborhood of $25,000.

"I want the audit now," an adament Callan told her committee. She said she didn't want to walk into the fall special town meeting unprepared to answer questions which might arise. The committee is hoping voters will okay a transfer of funds from the FY'89 budget to cover the shortfall. A nine-tenths vote will be required to take such action.

During Wednesday's meeting, Callan also outlined a list of concerns she had relative to possible improper expenditures of school funds. She noted that approximately 18 school personnel had been given telephone credit cards which, she claimed, lends itself to the creation of "a country club atmosphere that's open to abuse."

Callan questioned why her committee wasn't notified last month that June phone bills had to be paid by August 24 or school phones would be disconnected September 10. Also under discussion were reimbursements for professional development courses, $900 for dues to the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents through June 1989, and the legality of the proposed transfer of funds in the fall.

When Callan motioned to recall all credit cards, except that of Interim Supt. John Stella, Stella asked to delay any action until he reviews the next phone bill.

"We should treat these responsible people as professionals," he said of the cardholders. The board opposed recalling the cards in a five to one vote.

When Callan motioned to place dues for various professional organizations on hold, Stella said that had already been done.

Tony Accardi warned against a "piecemeal" approach to the budget crisis as members voted against placing a temporary hold on late buses to save $150 each day. He asked that the committee delay anymore decisions until Stella comes back to the board September 21 with his recommended cuts for the current budget.

Accardi told this paper he was angered over the "paranoia" of some committee members.

"The paranoia is so thick it's crippling the system. Why aren't we looking at the whole picture? We seem to drag back to the same issues over and over again. And now people are afraid to sign the warrant," Accardi said.

This last was a reference to the lack of signatures by a majority of the board for a non-salary warrant which included the telephone bills. In a previous meeting, the procedure for warrants was changed. Instead of only one member signing the warrant on a rotating basis, members felt it would be better to have at least four members sign the warrant to keep tabs on how school funds are being spent. A problem recently arose when a majority of members were not signing the warrants, for one reason or another. Motions to resolve the problem by placing the burden on the committee secretary and on both a majority of members for salary warrants and only the secretary for non-salary warrants failed.

At one point, James Demos earned the approval of the large crowd when he called for a "positive attitude" on the part of the committee and faith in Stella to run the system. He urged a return to normalcy, asking members not to "continually rehash our mistakes."

Commission studying housing issues

by Larz F. Neilson

People interested in low or moderate income housing will have opportunity to testify before a special legislative commission at either of two hearings in the next month.

The first hearing will be on Sept. 28 at Gardner Auditorium in the State House. The second will be in Burlington on Oct. 20

The focal point of the commission is to be sure that housing is produced, said Rep. Augusto Grace of Burlington, house chair of the commission. But the commission is studying the way the state produces such housing, and how housing needs are being balanced with the need for planning and growth control.

Rep. Grace spoke before a breakfast meeting of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council on Tuesday in Wakefield. Grace represents the 23rd Middlesex District, which will soon include Precinct Three of Wilmington.

One of the points being examine by the commission is the ten pe cent rule, whereby communitie are supposed to work towar having ten percent of all loc housing be subsidized low o moderate income units. The rul has not been met by many commu nities. One point of interest i examining the rule is the pressur that it exerts on communities Grace cited a case in Yarmoutl where a town-sponsored effort t build housing was dropped, becaus the units would not count towar meeting the town's ten percent.

Other areas under examinatio include the possible use of bindin arbitration as an alternative t appeals before the state Housin Appeals Committee. Also, th commission is interested in havin towns look at existing housin stock.

Since local zoning boards o appeals are hard-pressed to dea with the developers coming in with comprehensive permit hearings there is the possibility of letting towns create a different body to deal with such proposals, or possibly producing a better education process for zoning appeals board members.

Regionalization is another thrust of the commission, with comparison of towns' efforts to create housing, as well as study of locations. For instance, some towns have managed to put developments in border areas, thus pushing residents of the developments into the next community.

Grace said he was interested in having the towns come up with as many solutions to the housing needs as possible, and would prefer this to having the state impose its rules on communities.

Clarification

Contrary to information in a September 7 article on a recall petition to recall the Wilmington School Committee, former superintendent Robert Horan's contract last year was not approved by a unanimous vote. According to minutes from October 28,1987, James Demos did not go along with the majority of his board.

Demos told the Town Crier he was new to the board at that time and had reservations about some of the items in the contract, including the superintendent's buy-back pay. Consequently, he did not vote in favor of the contract.

35% of tested homes have Radon

Thirty five percent of all homes tested recently for Radon in Wilmington were found to have a concentration of the gas in their homes.

According to Health Director Greg Erickson, less than 100 homes were tested on a voluntary basis. He noted that most of those homeowners who elected to have the test done may have suspected they had radon.

In the six neighboring towns which participated in the radon testing program, 33 percent of over 600 homes tested were found to contain radon.

Another radon testing program will go into effect this fall, most likely in November when homes are expected to be sealed tight against the cold weather. Residents wishing to participate will be able to purchase a kit from the board of health. Because the town must go out to bid on the kits, the cost to residents may be slightly higher than the previous price of $15. Other towns will also be able to take advantage of this opportunity, said Erickson.

Radon gas comes from uranium. Problems arise when the gas seeps into homes, usually through basement foundations, and collects inside a person's lungs. The resulting radioactivity can cause lung cancer, according to health officials.

Dembowski admits to knowledge of deficit

by Arlene Surprenant

In an attempt to get to the bottom of who had knowledge of the school budget shortfall in June, former chairman Tony Accardi lashed out at Assistant Supt. Henry Dembowski at last week's school committee meeting in Wilmington.

Accardi explained to an attentive audience that he was concerned because it seemed certain members and administrators knew of the deficit earlier than he did and never brought it to the chairman's attention. Accardi had stated previously he first learned there were problems August 5.

When Accardi asked Dembowski if he had known of the deficit earlier, the assistant superintendent admitted he did. Dembowski said he had informed four committeemen of the shortfall on an "informal" basis. He added he never went further with the information because he felt it might be "bordering on possible insubordination" to bypass the superintendent and bring his knowledge to the committee on a formal basis.

"I just wish you had come to me and all committee members," said Accardi. Some people have suggested that Accardi knew of the deficit early in the summer and attempted to cover it up. Accardi has denied such allegations.

LENDER'S APPRAISAL
Many sellers think that the price of thier home is determined solely by what they're willing to accept and what the buyer is willing to pay. There's one more variable, however, that can complicate the sale of a home — the lender's appraisal.
To protect the interest of their investors, the mortgage lender hires an appraiser to give an independent objective evaluation of what the property is worth. It the appraised value is lower than the selling price, the seller will be glad that they've enlisted the services of a professional Realtor! The agent will then give the appraiser detailed information about other homes in the neighborhood which have recently sold that support the price of the seller's home. An appeal to the appraiser sometimes works, but if it doesn't, some delicate negotiations will follow. Both the seller and the buyer may have to make some consessions to make the transaction work. The bank may ask the buyers to increase their down payment, or they may ask the sellers for a reduction in price.
If there's a move in your future, the real estate experts at Kelley & Kompany are ready to serve you. Call us at 658-4171 or drop by our office at 20 Middlesex Avenue in Wilmington.

It's YOUR Money

WHERE DO YOU REALLY LIVE?
It's no longer unusual for a family to have more than one home. Maybe you winter in Florida or somewhere else in the Sunbelt, and go back to the old homestead up North for the summer. But where do you live officially? Where is your money, and what state gets to tax it? Both states may try.
It's important to check out the income tax and estate tax requirements before you decide; the difference can be considerable.
Then make it official. Register to vote and get your driver's license in your "home" state. Keep most of your securities and savings accounts there, and use that address in filing your federal tax returns. Some states even require that you file a declaration of change of domicile with a local court. You'll also want to get your pension and annuity checks at your official address, though this may require a waiver from the tax authorities in your former employer's state.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

For the first time in over twenty years, Massachusetts holds a state primary on a Thursday this year due to the Jewish holidays of Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur. And despite what some have claimed, it is more than this alteration in the voting schedule that will lead to an expected low voter turnout on September 15.

With the exception of a few scattered races, the primary fails to offer the chief ingredient required to motivate any American voter -- candidates. In Wilmington, Tewksbury and beyond there's more chatter about the pledge of allegiance and National Guard service than who is going to be a step closer to a rep or senate seat come Thursday night. That's because most incumbents remain unchallenged, and the only political horse race in the news is the present 'one-liners' battle between presidential aspirants George Bush and Michael Dukakis.

In fact, of 160 Massachusetts House seats, 88 are uncontested. And in the State Senate, 18 of 40 seats offer no competition. Ironically, the only excitement on the Democratic ballot in the Merrimack Valley is the county commissioners race, which usually attracts little attention. In Somerville, there's been a muddy (even by Somerville standards) race between two incumbents forced to battle for the same rep seat, caused by the recent redistricting. But locally, incumbent legislators are guaranteed a ticket to the November 8 ballot.

Also on the ballot Thursday are the Federal offices. Ted Kennedy is seeking his God knows what term in the Senate, and is unopposed since no good (sane) Democrat would dare challenge one of the K's. Accordingly, Teddy has been spending more time helping his son Patrick steal a rep seat in Rhode Island, than making any appearances back home. His biggest fundraiser of the summer was a video party, where supporters raised money at their homes while guests watched Ted give a nice, little speech on the VCR. Anyone who paid good money to watch a Ted Kennedy video needs a long, hot bath.

Also unopposed on the Democratic ballot is Ed Markey, 7th District Congressman. Ed seeks another two years in the U.S. House, so that he can continue his lobbying efforts for Daniel Ortega. And in between trips to Managua, Markey will cast his traditional votes against the MX Missile, etc. There's a rather vivid reminder of that voting record down the street on Route 129 where the pink slips are being handed out at Textron.

But for the Democrats you have to give them this -- at least there are names on their ballot. The Republican primary looks even sadder. No candidates are vying for county offices or the U.S. House, though Joe Malone is running for the chance to take on Senator Kennedy in the general election. Malone is unopposed in the Republican primary, as are Roy Williamson and Bob Avakian who will face off against two Democratic state reps in the general election. Williamson will challenge Rep. Geoff Beckwith, and Avakian will take on Rep. Augie Grace. Probably the brightest hope on the local scene for the Republicans is State Sen. Bob Buell of Boxford, a candidate for re-election. In Tewksbury, Republicans looking for a state senator will find the name of Bill Mehlan on the ballot.

So what's the reason for such a lack of candidates? Some have pointed their finger to the money issue. According to the Executive Director of Mass. Common Cause, Elizabeth Fay, "One important factor is the increasing amounts of money spent on campaigns in this state." In an interview on Tuesday, Fay said that any potential challenger to an incumbent would probably reconsider their candidacy when they take a look at the campaign war chests that most Massachusetts politicians have established over the years.

Limiting spending would be a great solution, but the Supreme Court said no in the 1976 landmark case of Buckley vs. Valeo. Unless campaigns are funded with public dollars, spending caps can't be enforced by government. According to Elizabeth Fay, only candidates for the state's constitutional offices receive public money.

Believe it or not, none of this is to encourage playing hookey on primary day. Voting is more than an obligation, it's a personal satisfaction in making your voice heard. But unfortunately, the lack of candidates this year puts a dent in that satisfaction. If limiting campaign spending isn't possible, limiting the terms of office might be the only way to open up the process, and bring the candidates in from the sidelines.

For now, they simply can't afford to run for public office in the Bay State.

The September 12, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted:

Avco Vice President and Comptroller Bob Sumberg was pictured presenting a check for $150,000 to Town Manager Jerry Bouchard. The check, part of the 1963 taxes for that company was intended to tide the town through a tight spot, as cash on hand had dropped to $88,000, and bills due amounted to $83,000. Avco's total tax bill would amount to $413,000 for the year, representing 19 percent of the town's revenues even though the company provided its own police and fire departments.

New cape cod and colonial homes in Hathaway Acres were offered at $17,000.

Officers of Wilmington's Boosters Club included President Will Kelloway, Vice President, Flora Kasabuski, Secretary Amanda Gray and Treasurer F. Talbot Emery.

Richard Gallagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallagher of Main Street, was undergoing basic training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Illinois.

Pictured were President Ben Ristuccia and Manager Vinny Coyne of Wilmington Ford and the trophies they presented to top teams of the Wilmington Rec Softball League. Shown holding the trophies were Jack Pellerin, manager of the Shamrocks, first place winners and Dick Ethier, with the second place trophy awarded to the Gildart team.

Criminals' rights versus your rights

by Bill Conlon

Enough is enough. If the state Legislature doesn't move quickly to solve this mess, then a raging lawsuit is most definitely in order.

The Bill of Rights to the U.S. Constitution guarantees freedom of the press. That means we in the news industry can print just about any damn thing we can prove, although the U.S. Supreme Court continually offers exceptions to the basic freedom so provided.

The Open Meeting law in Massachusetts states that quite a few things can't be withheld from public scrutiny. The minutes of public meetings, for example, cannot be kept from public view.

But criminal activity can be kept secret, indeed must be kept secret, under something called the "CORI" law.

A few short weeks ago, a man was arrested in Tewksbury for two counts of forcible rape of a child. We at the Town Crier couldn't write a story on the arrest, because the police said they were not allowed to give out any details of the case. Say what? The arrest was made, but the story remains locked inside the police files.

Granted, there is always the issue of the victim's family and their privacy. That is an issue for the newspapers to decide, not the police, and we at the Town Crier maintain a policy of never naming victims, and we'll go that extra mile to protect their privacy. Fine!

Just last week, a man named Robert Dussault was arrested in Tewksbury on nine vehicle-related charges, apparently following a high-speed car chase. Again the police refused to release any details about the car chase, including such basic facts as where the chase started and where it ended. Why? Because an arrest was made.

The root of this problem is the CORI law, standing for Criminal Offender Records Information. The ostensible purpose of the law, according to Tewksbury Police Chief John Mackey, is to keep former criminals from being haunted forever by their records. If the criminal wants to make a normal life for himself, the CORI law will keep his criminal past from becoming public.

But the law goes much further than expected. Those two reporters from the Lawrence Eagle Tribune had to sidestep and dodge the CORI legislation to find out about the prison furlough program, and they earned themselves a Pulitzer Prize for their work. Having once called Cedar Junction to get details on the death of one of Dr. Mahoney's killers, I've seen CORI in action. I was "stonewalled."

Without much fanfare, the police rely on calls from the general public to report suspicious activity. In the same vein, a story about an arrest or an unsolved case may prompt some hitherto unknown reader to come forth with possibly vital evidence. Reporters and cops have always had a good working relationship, for good reason. We newshounds don't always print every detail that we know, and the cops, naturally enough, don't show all of their cards either. Both sides benefit from a good press-police relationship.

So long as the press remains handcuffed by CORI, however, we can barely give you the simplest details of criminal activity. So too are the cops limited in how much public support they can generate through the use of the media. It really isn't the fault of the police.

To look at it another way, you don't have the right to know what is happening in your own town. If someone is arrested, he disappears!

According to Chief Mackey, once a suspect leaves the police station for the courthouse, nothing further may be released about the case. That's outrageous! The DA just doesn't have full details on the case, and certainly not in time for fresh news. And under CORI, the arresting officer isn't even allowed to discuss the crime!

Regarding those alleged sexual offenses, were any other kids approached? Did he work for a day care center? Are there any unsolved cases that might be involved with this one?

We'll never know.

During that car chase, were any parked vehicles sideswiped along the way? Was anyone run off the road? Was there a danger posed to the public?

We don't know.

The state Legislature is now considering a re-write of the CORI program, and they'd better act fast. Press organizations all over the Commonwealth are gearing up for a legal battle, and they rarely lose. The fight will undoubtedly involve high-caliber attorneys and all sorts of do-gooders on the other side, but the bottom line is that the public is being harmed by the existing laws. You're right to know is being damaged through the overprotection the criminals.

Hopefully the state Legislators will blow the whole damned CORI thing right off the books, because the legal fight will be a nasty one.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

We were very pleased to receive the decision of the Housing Appeals Committee to build and affordable housing development on River Road in Tewksbury. Ninety affordable units will be available at prices as low as $78,500. Loans to purchasers will be available with interest rates as low as 5.5 percent. Qualified purchasers can buy a unit at this development with only a five percent down payment.

We are life long residents of Tewksbury. We have tried very hard to work with the various town boards to develop affordable housing which best serves the needs of the Town. We recognize and appreciate the hard work and unanimous support of the Tewksbury Affordable Housing Committee in planning a development which will bring home ownership within the reach of many town residents and employees who cannot otherwise afford to buy a residence in Town.

We feel it was unfortunate for the Town to incur the $70,000 or so in legal fees necessary to have the appeal heard. Needless to say, our legal fees were also very high. The vote at town meeting (224-49) against appropriating any more money for this matter is indicative of the general support for this development. The numerous inquiries from townspeople about purchasing an affordable development has even surprised us.

Construction will begin shortly. We would be very surprised if the Board of Appeals requested the Town Manager to sue the Commonwealth of Massachusetts over this matter. No town in 20 years has successfully sued the state. Many have tried and lost. If the Town Manager chose to sue the Commonwealth, several hundred thousand dollars of legal fees could be incurred, increasing the tax burden on town residents. This is within the environment of teacher layoffs and other cutbacks because of financial pressures. However, much more could be lost. First, local preference for town residents would not be available. That is, Tewksbury residents and employees would not be allowed first choice on the affordable units. Also, the Town could stand to lose significant state funds.

We continue to honor all agreements and conditions made with the Affordable Housing Committee. We trust that we can now work with all Town boards in an amicable fashion. At this point, we will begin collecting names for the purpose of determining who will be entitled to purchase an affordable unit. Our list will be turned over to the authority which the Town designates.

Sincerely,
Robert K. Ahern

Dear Larz:

Why?? Why do people have to be so cruel? It isn't bad enough to lose your precious little girl (my Melissa was four years old). But to have some wicked, mean, viscous person steal items from her grave when all you have to do is look at it to see that it is a little girl!

We have had wooden tulips and wooden deer (lawn items) stolen. Something that meant nothing to anybody but greed. And meant the world to her mom!

But, that isn't enough people have to walk their dogs down there and let them "go" wherever they feel the 'need.' It's not only disgusting, but sick!! People should think twice before entering the cemetery, it's a place for memoring, cherishing, loving, caring and most of all "Respect!"

So, please have some respect for the dead as well as the living!

Don't do it!

Patricia Stygles-Holloway

Wilmington to receive additional $12k energy grant

Massachusetts Energy Secretary Sharon M. Pollard, State Senator Robert C. Buell, and State Representative James R. Miceli has announced that the Town of Wilmington has been selected to receive a state energy grant in the amount of $12,300. The grant is an additional allocation to a previous grant and will bring the total amount to $458,670. The grant is being awarded under the Energy Conservation Improvement Program (ECIP) of the Executive Office of Energy Resources, and will be used to install storm windows in Wilmington High School. Energy conservation measures previously approved for Wilmington High School include the installation of a new boiler and an energy management system, and improvements to the auditorium roof vent.

The Energy Conservation Improvement Program is funded by a bond issue authorized by the Massachusetts State Legislature. The program assists cities and towns in identifying and implementing energy conservation measures in their public buildings. All cities and towns which receive money under the Energy Conservation Improvement Program are required to repay 30 percent of the net grant amount over the course of the next 10 years.

In announcing the award to Wilmington, Secretary Pollard said, "The State Energy Office is pleased to provide this assistance to the Town of Wilmington. Unlike many expenditures of the state funds, this grant is an investment that will produce almost immediate savings for the town."

Senator Buell and Representative Miceli added that the grant to the Town of Wilmington will enable the town to save valuable dollars for Wilmington's taxpayers. They noted that money, which would have been spent for fuel costs, can now be used to meet other important community needs.

First Baptist Church presents film, 'Cry from the Mountain'

Sunday, September 18, 1988 at 6:30 p.m., the First Baptist Church of Wilmington will present "Cry from the Mountain," a World Wide Pictures production. In this adventure film, scene after scene portrays the beauty and wildlife of this "last frontier" state.

The story centers around the Sanders family. Larry Sanders takes his 10-year-old son Cal on a camping trip where he is to break the news that he and his wife Carolyn are getting a divorce. Meanwhile Carolyn, filled with bitterness and unable to forgive her husband for an affair he has had with a woman in his office, considers the option of having an abortion. Through a life-threatening accident and an old hermit living in a deserted mining camp, the course of events is changed for the Sanders.

A free will offering will be taken in support of the Billy Graham ministries. The film will be shown at the Church, 173 Church St., Wilmington. Call 658-8584 for more information.

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

Let's take a few minutes to discuss insect controls in the vegetable garden.

The most encouraging news I have heard in a long while is that help is on the way for those of us who are concerned about using toxic pesticides in our gardens. Any time one uses a toxic insecticide, there is the risk that something is going to be harmed as a result. The "something" could be the air, the ground water, earthworms, beneficial insects, small children, cats, dogs, our native songbirds and yes, ourselves.

Applied judiciously (meaning strictly according to directions) and late in the evening to allow bees safe return to their hives, toxic pesticides probably do not do a great deal of harm to air, soil, and animal life. The problem here is that many (perhaps most) gardeners do not use toxic insecticides with the care and caution they require.

I have been using Sevin (chemical name carbaryl) for 20 years, and always with great care. Nevertheless, each time I have used it, I have had a feeling of uneasyness. The truth is, do we not really know for certain if there are some negative side effects inherent in the use of toxic plant control agents which simply have not been identified as yet. Example: when we apply Sevin, or methoxychlor or diazinon to our plants, the dust or spray must pass through the air to reach the target. Since some of this toxic material remains in the air, we run the very real risk of taking small quantities into our lungs. Over many years, the cumulative effects could well be significant. Some will argue that the negative effects are almost nil. (Certainly the pesticide manufacturers will so argue.) The truth is, we do not know how much or how little harm we are doing to ourselves and to the environment by using the standard toxic insecticides. More and more, I find myself using less Sevin and more rotenone, a non toxic "organic" insect control agent.

For those of us who fret about all of this, there is good news. A whole new industry has emerged over the last several years, devoted to producing what have been referred to as "biopesticides." Although still in its infancy with much work to be done, this alternative to toxic pesticides may well be the answer to our concerns. Biopesticides are derived from natural fatty acids which will not harm birds, children, and pets (or air, water and soil) and are targeted at controlling just about all of the insect pests we battle every summer.

You may already have seen them on the shelves at Mahoney's, Pinewood Gardens and other garden supply centers. The largest company in this business markets its products under the name Safer, and their number one seller is called Safer insecticidal soap. Their headquarters is here in Newton, Ma. I tried this product for the first time this summer and can attest that it does work, although, as expected not as efficiently as the stronger, toxic pesticides. Probably its chief advantage for me is that I did not experience that twinge of concern I have always noted in the past, while applying Sevin.

What do others think about the biopesticides? Bruce Butterfield, research director at the National Gardening Association in Vermont says, "Safer represents one of the first alternatives to main-line chemicals in the consumer market place." Bob Thomson, host of WGBH's Victory Garden, is a new fan of the non-toxic Safer type control agents, and is currently running trials to test them further. Tom Oates of the Washington based National Coalition Against the Misuse of Pesticides says "Safer products work and we like them."

It is estimated that by the year 2001, 60 percent of all insect control agents in use, commercial and home, will be biopesticides. For this gardener, that is, indeed, good news.

Lead tests of drinking water underway

Drinking fountains and kitchen sinks in Wilmington schools will be flushed for two minutes each day as a precaution against lead in the drinking water until testing for the presence of lead is completed by the Wilmington Health Department.

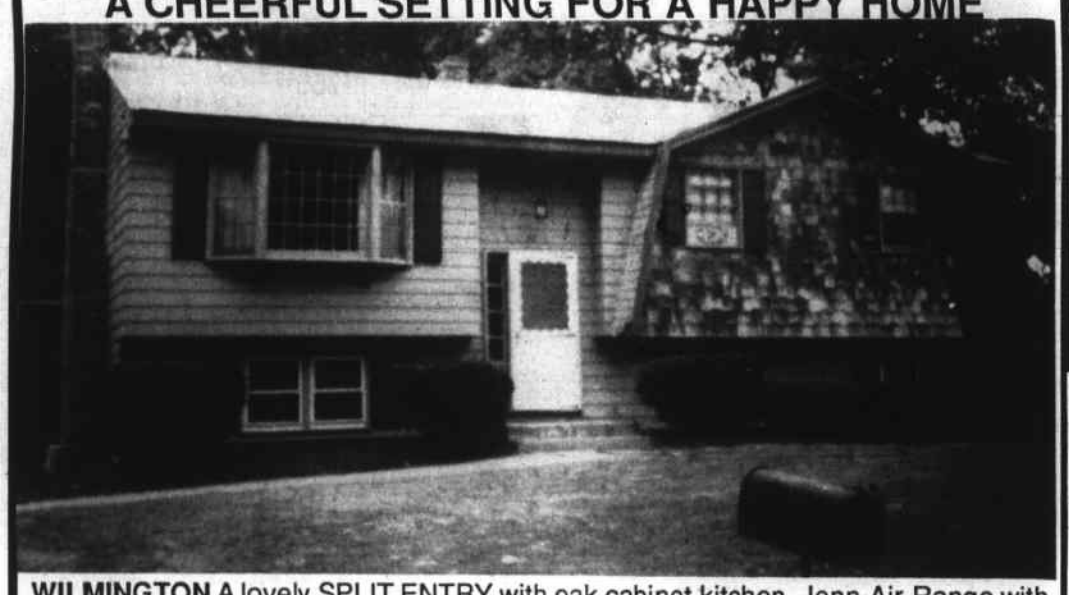

According to new Supt. of Public Buildings Roger Lessard, the flushing, which is mandated by the state, will be done by the custodial staff until the test results are received.

Health Director Greg Erickson said Tuesday he notified officials of the need for precaution following a meeting with the state.

"It will all be taken care of quickly," Erickson said of the lead testing program.

None of Wilmington's schools have lead pipes, noted Lessard.

Controversy surrounds truck exclusion, fence safety issues

by Arlene Surprenant

Discussion of two "safety issues" in the Salem Street area concerning a truck exclusion and a fence in violation of a zoning bylaw led to a verbal confrontation and a call for Wilmington police at Monday's board of selectmen meeting. Chairman Jim Stewart asked that Tony Capuano and his son Mark be escorted from the meeting so order could be restored as Mark exchanged words with Biggar Avenue resident Charles Tremblay.

At the center of the controversy was a complaint filed by some neighbors against Capuano's fence at the corner of Ring and Salem streets. In a petition, neighbors claimed the fence blocked visibility and was the cause of "many" accidents in the area. After a town investigation, it was discovered Capuano was in violation of a bylaw stating the fence can be no higher than two and a half feet. Capuano was asked to scale down the fence or face court action.

Capuano charged that his fence, which had reportedly been standing for 16 years, has not caused any accidents. Safety Officer Bobby Shelley confirmed that there had been no accidents in that intersection for at least one and a half years.

"I would take down the whole fence if it in any way would jeopardize a child in Wilmington," Capuano told the Town Crier. He added some people view the fence as being as effective as a stop sign.

During the meeting, Capuano sought the name of the person who filed the initial complaint. He said his lawyer needed the name and he was told he had a right to that information. Though Capuano stated publicly he wouldn't take down the fence now because the whole matter was "handled wrong," he told this paper he would remove the fence if he received the name of the person who made the complaint as well as an apology to correct the wrong impression that his fence caused accidents.

As tempers flared, Mark Capuano had words with Tremblay, who said he felt the fence was another example of a "safety issue" similar to the truck exclusion sought by Capuano and neighbors in the past four months.

"No one's out to give anybody a hard time," Tremblay said as he strove to be heard.

Many area homeowners were in attendance to learn the outcome of a truck exclusion request for Salem Street. Residents had sought the exclusion to protect their children and cut down on truck noise late into the night.

Police Chief Bobby Stewart recommended in a letter the truck exclusion be put into effect for a 90 day trial basis. The alternate route would be I-93 to 495 to Rt.38. The exclusion would be conditional on a similar truck exclusion on three roads in Tewksbury, said Stewart, and traffic counts taken on side streets to satisfy the state.Both Tewksbury and the state are involved in the process because of the connection of Salem Street to a Tewksbury road and a state highway. Chief Stewart warned, however, that excluding trucks on Salem Street would create additional safety hazards on other side streets and an additional backlog of traffic on Rt.62 and Rt.38.

"We owe it to every street in town not to move traffic to other side streets in Wilmington," said Jim Stewart, adding he was satisfied his board had "done everything we have been able to do" to resolve the issue.

Capuano claimed this was not so and someone has been "playing games" with him.

"The town of Wilmington did not want to do anything about the trucks," he maintained.

Ristuccia Arena open again

The Ristuccia Ice Arena was open last week, after having been closed briefly following the serving of a cease and desist order by the Mass. Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) on August 26. The order came after a series of misunderstandings which began when the arena authority appealed an order of conditions which had been issued by the local conservation commission on June 17.

The appeal was on only one of the 54 conditions in the order. That condition would block the adding of any impervious material to the site, or in other words, prevent the further building of any kind on the site. The condition was added to the order after some members of the conservation commission had signed the order. The arena authority appealed this condition, maintaining that it was a loss of property rights.

The arena, meanwhile, has been open for a couple of years. What has been lacking is landscaping. The completion of the landscaping was included in the order of conditions, as a means of preventing erosion and siltation.

When the DEQE received the appeal, it had not received the new order of conditions. So when it opened the file, all that was there was an order of conditions which had been written four years ago.

When any order of conditions is appealed, it is standard that the work be stopped, per order of the DEQE.

The arena authority, having only appealed one condition of the order, continued working on the landscaping.

The conservation commission notified the DEQE in early August that the arena authority was working on the site, and requested the DEQE to put a stop to it.

In many cases, someone from the conservation commission simply visits the site, finds out what is going on, and tells the owner to stop work. That was not what happened here.

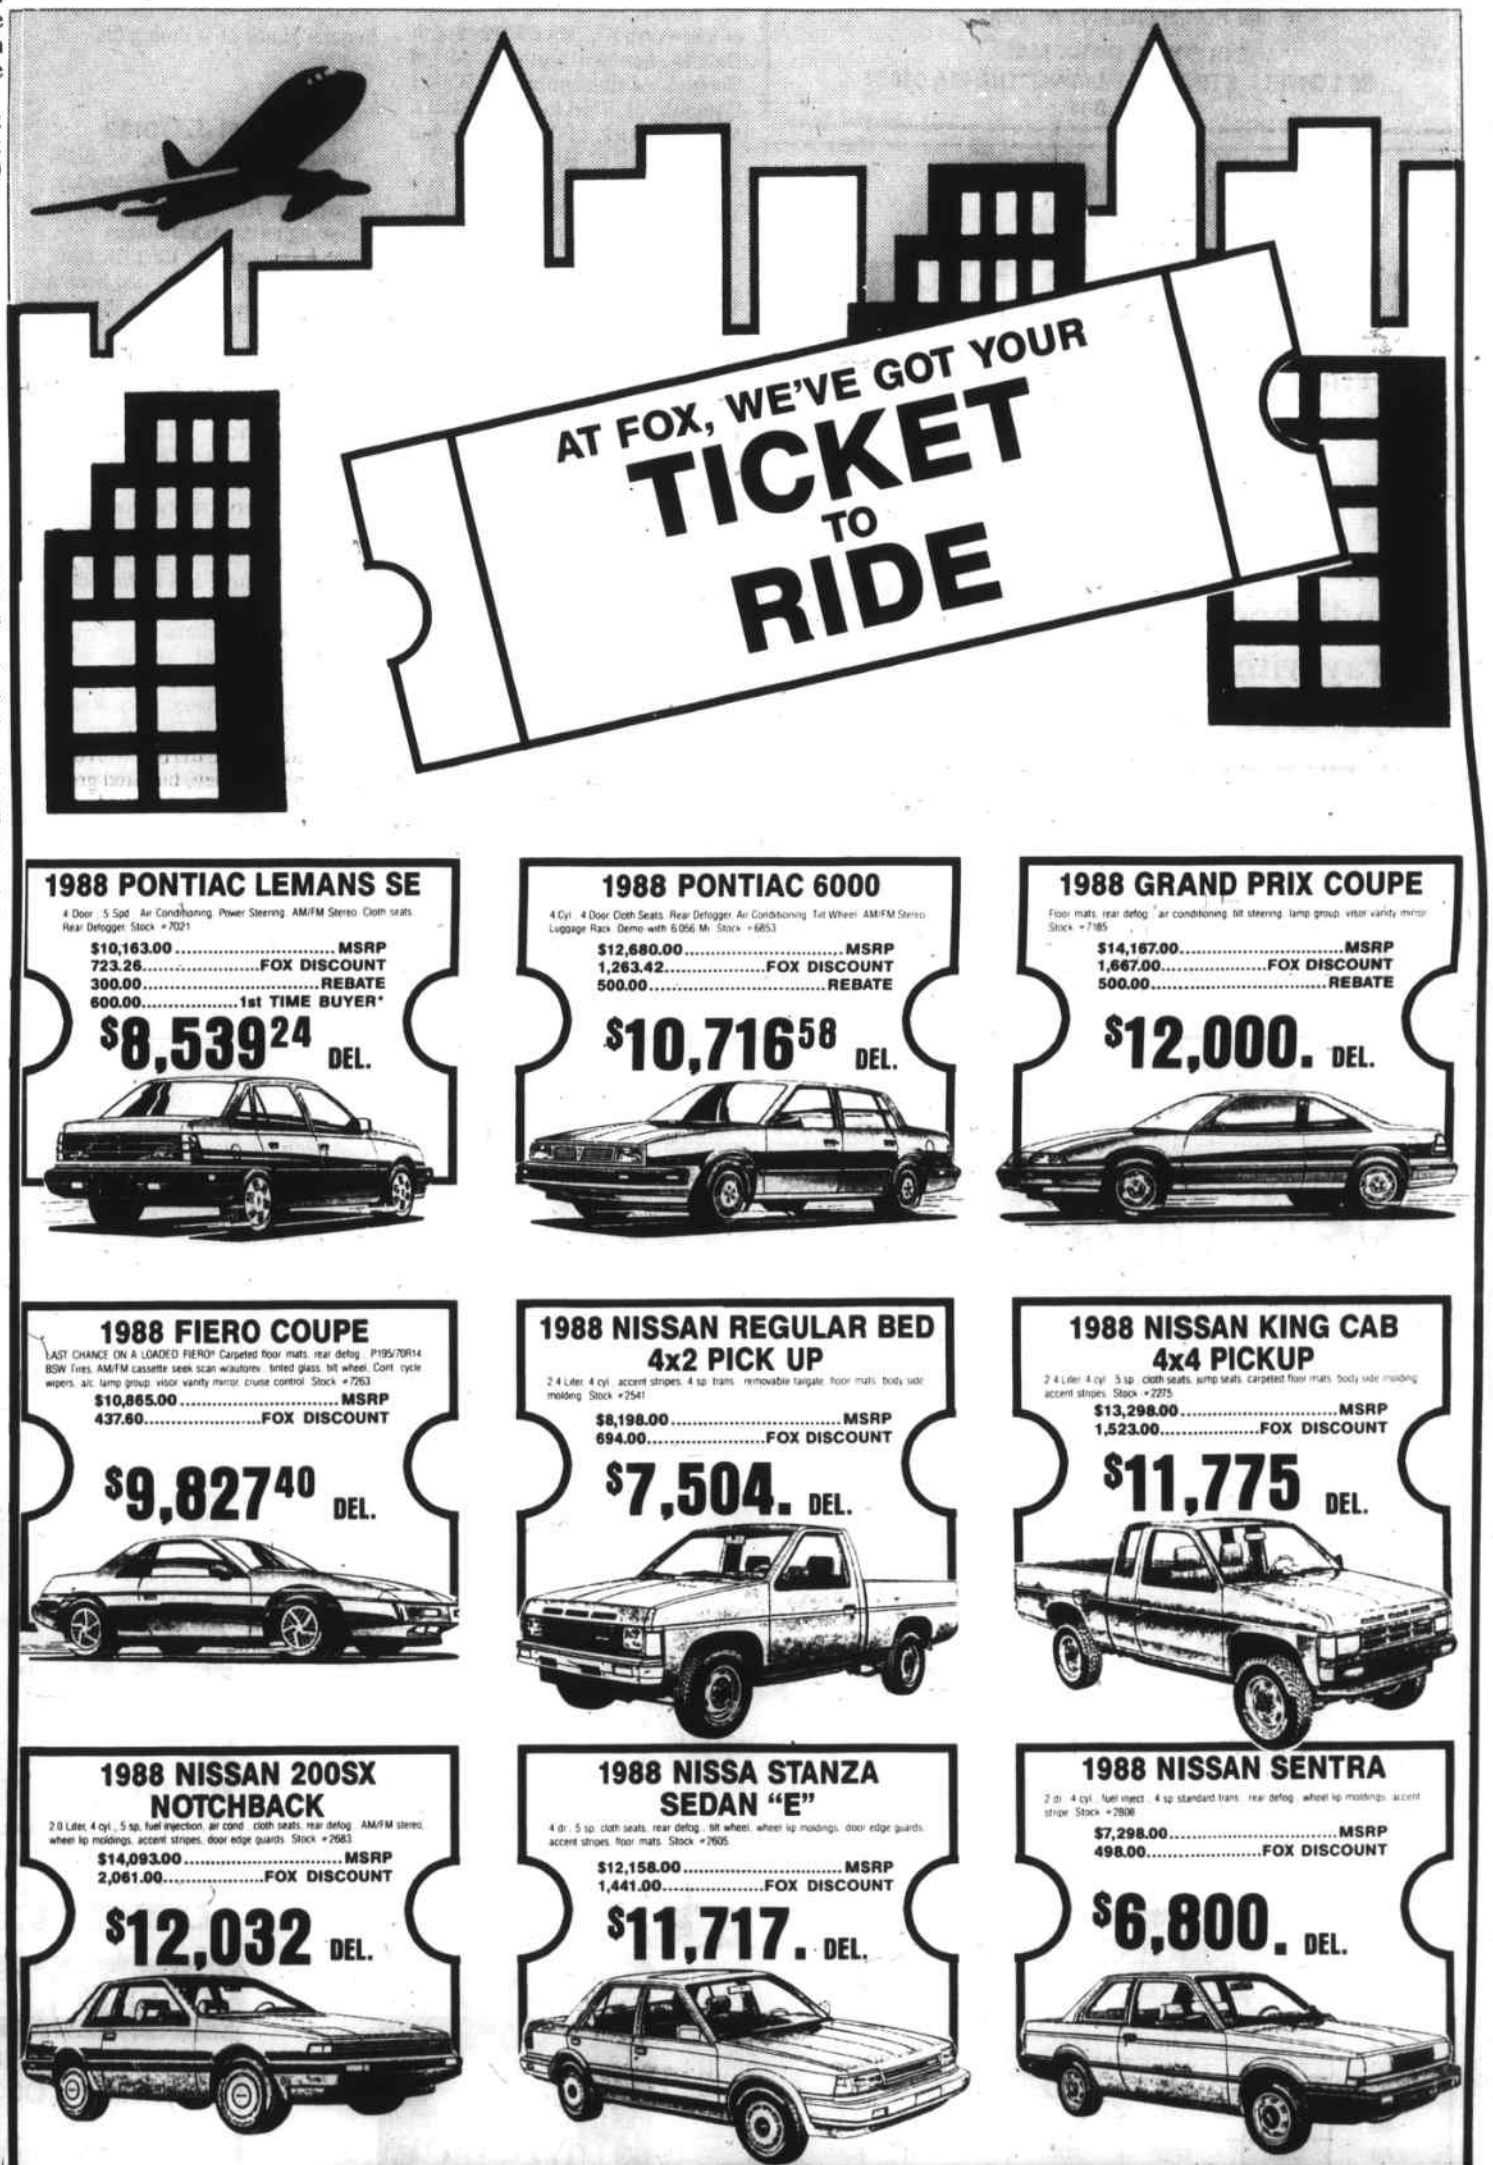

On August 17, the concom again wrote to the DEQE, requesting immediate action.

So when Rollo Tucker of the DEQE served a cease and desist order on the site on August 26, it was in a confrontational manner. One man on a bulldozer was told he would be arrested if he didn't stop immediately.

Owner Ben Ristuccia was quite upset. Concerned that his insurance might not cover the property with a cease and desist order in effect, he ordered the arena closed. It was reopened after some persuasion from arena manager Al Reidy.

Wilmington Family Counseling seeks additional funds

by Arlene Surprenant

Representatives of the Wilmington Family Counseling Service (WFCS) paid a visit to the board of health Monday seeking support for more funds to improve services to the community and expand the scope of their program.

Since the non-profit organization is funded through a line item in the health department budget, the directors felt that the board of health was the obvious answer to their needs.

Chairman Jim Ficociello felt otherwise. He warned that with less state funds slated to come to Wilmington in the future, money will be tight. He suggested the Board of Directors should either consider increasing costs to patients to become more self-sufficient or go directly to voters with a warrant article asking that the town pay in proportion to the amount of service being provided to Wilmington citizens.

Dr. Carol Golub, who heads the service, recognized that more of a commitment may be needed on the part of the town. She said she would like to broaden services to include the elderly and handicapped and perhaps the school system. She said she would like to keep referral lines open and develop more programs. She explained that "we're feeling a tremendous pressure on our services" and she herself was not always compensated for extra administrative work.

Directors were adament that they've increased patient costs to those in the lower income brackets as much as possible. They said it would be defeating their purpose of reaching those who can least afford counseling to raise prices further. Kevin Sowyrda maintained that WFCS offers a "unique" service to Wilmington and the public today feels "strongly" about the availability of counseling services. He said it was time to set priorities.

Wilmington Family Counseling opens its doors to any resident needing help with personal, family, or other problems. Patients pay for services according to a sliding fee scale. WFCS offices are located in the professional building on Main Street across from Dunkin' Donuts.

Shawsheen Tech awarded EEO grant

by Arlene Surprenant

The Shawsheen Tech was recently notified it will be receiving $48,352 in Equal Education Opportunity funds.

The state distributes EEO grants to school districts with spending levels below the state average. All that is required to gain possession of the funds is the approval of three of the five regional towns making up the district. That approval is expected to come from voters at special town meetings.

School committeeman Kevin Sowyrda claims the funds were awarded in recognition of his school being "a fiscally conservative institution."

"We've literally stretched every dollar," he said of his committee. Sowyrda explained the monies will help replace some of the $600,000 cut from the budget because of the failure to fund the Voke Aid Bill in its entirety.

On a personal level, Sowyrda said he would like to see a portion of the grant go toward new textbooks and residential placement costs for special needs youngsters.

Health director pursues court order to demolish building

The owner of a home destroyed by fire over Memorial Day weekend is being taken to court by Wilmington Health Director Greg Erickson for failure to comply with an order of his board.

The board gave Lake Street resident Bernard Eaton 90 days to demolish or rehabilitate his home after fire gutted his residence last spring. The board noted Monday that Eaton has neither complied with the order nor asked for a formal extension of time.

Erickson said he will pursue the matter in court this Thursday and ask the clerk to issue a court order to demolish the building. The structure and property had been the focus of neighborhood complaints because of alleged unsanitary conditions for a number of years.

Erickson warned neighbors in attendance at the health board meeting that the courts could still delay the proceedings by alloting more time to clean up the property or by only issuing fines.

Chairman Jim Ficociello urged a speedy resolution to the problem when he said " let's get bids and demolish it. Let's get it done."

Eaton told the Town Crier that he has been working to try to arrange financing for a new modular home on the site, and that funding has now been secured. In the meantime, he said, he has been working piecemeal to try to clean up the property without adequate funding.

Tewksbury's first Homecoming Day

by Bill Conlon

For its first showing ever in the town of Tewksbury, last Saturday's Homecoming Day at town hall was a roaring success.

Literally thousands turned out to the town commons for the all-day event, and the worn-out phrase "A good time was had by all" certainly seemed to apply.

A few folks were worried about the wet weather on Friday, but for no reason. Saturday dawned bright and clear, and remained so until the 18th Army Band played its final tune around 7:30 at night. It was a long and pleasant day, sometimes slow and relaxing, other times wild and wet. There was something for everyone, like Tewksbury itself.

The Homecoming Day offered a chance to stroll the common, enjoy a free pancake breakfast put on by the Congregational Church across from town hall, or poke at the flea market tables around the common. The day started slowly, and the turnout at the pancake breakfast proved that Tewksbury has quite a few late-sleepers.

Another quiet and hushed event was the dedication of the Kyricos memorial at Shawsheen Street and Patten Road, a lasting tribute to a Tewksbury man who never came home from Vietnam. But while the day started slowly, it picked up in pace and activity as the sun climbed across the sky.

In the afternoon, the Over the Hill Gang, made up of town celebrities boith past and present, challenged a scratch team of state policmen to a softball game at the Foster School field, a short stroll away from town hall. The game was ... uh ... fun .

Fielding errors ruled the day at the ballfield, but then again it was never supposed to be a Red Sox - Yankees game. The only homer was pounded in by former Selectman Bill Hallisey, whose three-run blast in the bottom of the first wasn't enough to carry the day. Most of the other scoring came through missed throws and oopsie fielding, but so what? The Staties won the game 9 - 7, but everybody had a great time.

The funniest part of the ball game came when former Selectman Paul Sullivan took over the loudspeaker, to announce the play by play.

Sullivan was brutal on any errors made on his former collegues, and he was especially rough on Tewksbury Officer Roger Tanguay, who played for the state police team to round out the field. Funniest of all were Sullivan's impromptu "radio ads" for Carter Green condo units, delivered between innings.

Before the final out, however, the Tewksbury Fire Department and the DPW "Strongmen" were lining up with hoses for a game of water polo.

Unlike last year's water polo, in which an inner tube was pushed back and forth along a cable, this year's event saw plastic fencing installed on both sides of Common Street, and a basketball placed on a painted mark on the road. Then, at the whistle, both teams turned on their two hoses each and tried to force the ball into the other team's territory. The DPW won the match on a questionable 3-2 score, but again it was more fun than anything else. More than once the hoses went wild and soaked the spectators, but that might have been planned.

Lunch was handled by the Rotary Club, selling kielbasa sandwiches and coffee, and the Elks with a table for hot dogs and soft drinks. Lines quickly formed at both eateries, and around the two ice cream trucks as well.

Oh, the day was far from over.

Rock bands Maximus and the Steep Grade Band set up operations on a trailer at the end of Common Street, providing sometimes loud background music for the day. The army band arrived by bus, but sat patiently awaiting their turn.

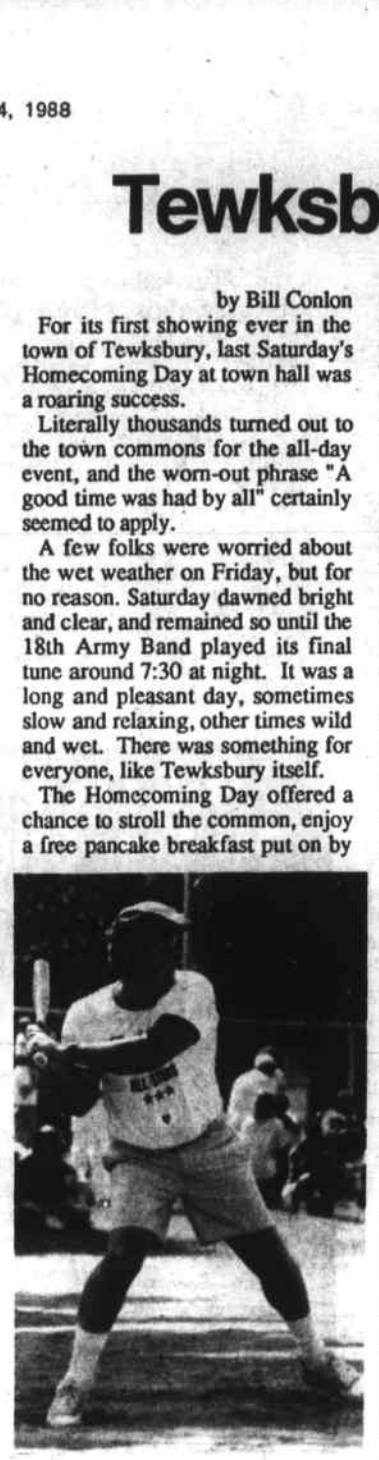

As an interesting little sidelight, two weddings were held at the Congregational Church during the course of the day. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Nulty tied the knot early in the day, and Lori Ann and Ronald Langell became Mister and Missus while Homecoming was underway across the street in the afternoon. Best wishes to both, and tough luck to the Steep Grade Band for having to pull the plug early to keep from disrupting the wedding.

Promptly at six the 18th Army Band began to play. Only 19 of the units 40 or so members were on hand, but the 19 made up the Show Band section, and they played well.

But the superb big band music was halted briefly, while Selectmen and DAV officials read and handed over proclamations from the state to Lou T. Madden of DAV Post 110 for his service to the community.

Then the 18th Army Band began

Wearing a look of pure concentration, Selectman Lou "The Rock" Carciofi bears down on the ball.

"And next to bat is ..."

The irrepressable Paul Sullivan kept the crowd in stitches with his play by play commentary of the softball game between the state troopers and the town's Over-the-Hill All-Stars. The police won 9-7.

Thanks, Lou

to play in earnest. While the crowd grew younger for the rock bands, a few gray hairs started to appear for the Army musicians. Classics such as 'Sweet Georgia Brown' and Glen Miller's 'Tuxedo Junction' were delivered to perfection, along with more contemporary tunes such as 'Shakedown' from the soundtrack of the film Beverly Hills Cop.

With the 18th Army Band making music, under the guidance of Sgt. First Class Jeff Hooven, the long day on the town common ended reluctantly indeed. But end it did.

However, rumors were heard of even better ideas for next year's Homecoming Day, including a plan to make the town's festival into a three-day event.

Anything as good as this years's Homecoming Day should be made to last as long as possible.

18th Army Band

The 18th Army Band's "Show Band" from Fort Devens ended the day with a well-delivered series of big band, swing era and contemporary music. Sergeant First Class Jeff Hooven guided the 19-member ensemble when he wasn't taking a turn behind the conga drums.

Denning robot: prototype for the future

by Christine Tighe

Few people believed it when Warren George, president of Denning Mobile Robotics in Wilmington, said that a robot with sight, senses and mobility could be built and activated. But, it was proven when the Denning Sentry Robot was designed in 1982 and went public in 1983.

The Sentry Robot was designed especially for security patrol in company buildings and warehouses and to make patrolmen's jobs easier. Standing about four feet tall and weighing close to 500 pounds, the robot can move up to two miles per hour and can travel through a space 32 inches in width according to George.

The robot possesses intruder sensors, smoke sensors and gas sensors. "It can see through walls and can detect a human within 100 feet. There is a camera inside the head of the robot and the information that is received through the different sensors on the robot's body is carried to six onboard computers inside the robot. Then that information is transmitted to the Communication Station," he said.

The Communication Station is a computer system with the robot's patrol information relayed on one screen and the robot's camera vision on another so the operator can see what the robot sees and where it is traveling.

The computer of the Communication Station is very easy to use according to George. "The operator doesn't need much more than a fourth grade education to run it and give the robot commands. It makes the patrol guard's job easier. All he (or she) has to do is give the command to the robot on the computer and the robot does it. It can be commanded to to anywhere and it knows to travel around obstacles since it has the map of the room programmed into its computers. Also the robot is able to patrol different floors of the building by elevator," he said.

"The Communication Station can run up to four robots and we hope in January it can run up to 16 robots," George added.

"When the robot locates an intruder, it sets off an alarm and illuminates the intruder in an infer-red spotlight and then sends this information to the Communication Station. The patrolman can then proceed with the necessary steps and call the police. This makes it a lot safer for the patrolman," said George.

Denning also shipped a robot out to the San Antonio Prison in Texas, to make the security guards' jobs safer there. "It's obvious that the robot makes a lousy hostage. If there is an uprising from the prisoners, the security guard doesn't get hurt. Plus, with a robot on guard, there is an assessment of the situation in it's computers and there is a permanent video of events in the robot's camera.

Along with making security guards' jobs easier, George sees robots in the future doing other tasks. "I see in the next five years robots doing household chores," he stated. Denning plans to design the same type of robot with an attached arm to enable it to vacuum rugs, scrub floors, and wash windows in the home.

Denning is the world leader in mobile robotics but being number one isn't always best according to George. "There are still the ones who don't believe in the big future of mobile robotics in the home." However, Denning proved itself in 1982 and George believes they can do it again.

Billiard Room to open in Wilmington

by Arlene Surprenant

Gary Lucchesi of Eastern Billiard Supply was granted a permit to open a billiard room and video arcade in a Main Street building that once housed Global Appliance.

At their meeting Monday night, Wilmington selectmen granted the permit with the restriction that no gambling be allowed on the premises and the applicant come back at a later time to get individual licenses for each of his video games. Lucchesi said he planned to put approximately 20 video games in, to start. He added he was primarily interested in setting up 16 billiard tables, which he saw as a way to help his company grow.

Selectmen based much of their decision to grant the permit on a letter from the Chief of Police stating Lucchesi and his firm enjoy an "excellent reputation" in Winchester, where the retail billiard service is located.

According to Lucchesi, the room will open in November to residents 18 years old or older. Anyone under age 18 will need permission of their parents to enter the premises, which will not be open to teenagers during school hours.

Lucchesi said he anticipates a series of local tournaments could be set up with prizes and he hopes to serve soft drinks, frankfurters, and sandwiches to keep customers in the building. He said no alcoholic beverages would be served or allowed on site.

Shriner's to host harvest ball

The Aleppo Temple Shriners extend to the public a cordial invitation to celebrate with them their annual harvest ball Saturday, September 24. This first gala event of the fall season promises to be an outstanding social affair. It will be an opportunity for you to enjoy an evening of dancing and listening pleasure. Music will be furnished by the Aleppo Swing Band. Whether you have danced to the big band sounds of Harry James, Count Basie or the Dorsey brothers during the 30s, and 40s or are a Michael Jackson fan of the 80s is irrelevant. The exciting Aleppo Swing Band of 22 professional musicians has created a type of nostalgic music that recalls the days of the Totem Pole, Morey Pearl's Tent, Mosley's on the Charles and Kimball's Starlite.

Using "Moonlight Serenade" as their sign-on and under the direction of Harry Fink, a talented musician, the Aleppo Swing Band has appeared at parties, testimonials, receptions and concerts sponsored by many various organizations throughout New England. Even if you don't dance, come and enjoy the music. Relax in the auditorium where a variety of refreshments may be enjoyed.

We urge you to come. Enjoy the company of good friends and entertain your family or associates.

The Aleppo Harvest Ball will be held on Saturday night, September 24, from 8 p.m. until midnight at the Shriners Auditorium, 99 Fordham Rd., Wilmington (Exit 39 from Route I-93).

Send donation of $5 per person to Shriners Auditorium, P.O. Box H, 99 Fordham Rd., Wilmington, MA 01887. Include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For ticket information call the Shriners Auditorium. Telephone 665-6466 or 657-4202.

Pioneer program gets underway this week

Friday, September 16, 1988 will be opening day for the Pioneer Girls and Stockade Boys programs as the First Baptist Church of Wilmington. Boys and girls from Wilmington and surrounding communities are invited to register and enjoy popcorn in the theatre-like atmosphere to view the film "Danger on the Pioneer Express." The film features Brent Towers, the Christian Cowboy, and his two friends Tom and Jenny who are recruited to help ensure there is no trouble on the first run of the Pioneer Express.

Pioneer Girls is a ministry for girls in the first grade through sixth grade. Its purpose is to "provide a Bible based Christ centered girls program that results in personal growth for the girl in her total life." The weekly meetings include crafts, lessons, games, songs and other events. The girls are given the opportunity to go on outings and to participate in camping programs at the Pioneer Camp in Maine. Pioneer girls will meet Friday evenings from 6:30 to 8 at the First Baptist Church, 173 Church St., Wilmington.

Stockade is a weekly boys program which is part of the Christian Service Brigade, a nation wide Christian boys program. The purpose of Stockade is similar to that of Pioneer Girls in that Stockade provides a Christ--centered program to help boys come to know Jesus Christ in a personal way, to develop relationships and to experience growth in their Christian lives. Weekly meetings consist of games, lessons and crafts. Frequently, the boys will go camping and on various other outings. Stockade will meet Friday evenings from 6:30 to 8 at the First Baptist Church.

Registration is free. Call 658-8584 for more information.

Concert and Art Exhibit a reminder

At 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18 the Wilmington Council for the Arts will present the Merrimack Chapter of the Sweet Adelines in concert at the Art Center (the old town hall across from the Congregational Church) on Middlesex Avenue. At this time there will be a very special art exhibit of the winners of the July second art show. These include works by Wilmington artists as well as those of artists from North Andover, Reading, Medford, Billerica and Burlington.

One of the outstanding works is Joane Gargan's "Old Sturbridge Basket Weaver" which took three awards: the John Brooks' Award, Best in Show, and the Most Popular. All these prize-winning artistic endeavors are well worth seeing.

The Sweet Adelines of course need no advance publicizing. They are well-known and respected for their musical renditions, having themselves won many awards. Their concert will include such favorites as "In the Mood," "Operator," "Heartaches," and "Stormy Weather" together with other loved melodies.

At last year's open house with its art exhibit and wonderful music provided by students of Wilmington High School there was a large SRO audience. We trust this will be a repeat performance so come early, rain or shine, and enjoy the pictures. Then sit back and relax in your Art Center. It is here for your pleasure. There is no charge for either the exhibit or concert. Sunday, September 18.

Yankee Doodle Cloggers to perform in New York

On October 1, the Yankee Doodle Cloggers exhibition teams will be appearing at the Statue of Liberty National Monument for the 1988 Ethnic Festival. Since 1983, these annual festivals have been held on Liberty Island to pay tribute to the many immigrants to the United States. Through these festivals, or cultural diversity is shared with visitors.

The Yankee Doodle Cloggers (adult team) and Yankee Doodle Dandies (youth team) will be representing one of the oldest folk dances developed in the U.S. which was brought over by our ancestors who settled in the Appalachian Mountains. A melting pot of steps, from England, Germany, Ireland, Blacks and Cherokees, the clog dance was originally performed to fiddle and banjo accompaniment. With the staccato sound of the taps and the fast-paced music, it excites audiences wherever it is performed.

The two teams will also be performing for their eighth season on Saturday, October 8 and Sunday, October 9th on the main stage at the Topsfield Fair. They are under the direction of Sharon Hamson, Wilmington, MA.

Classes in beginning clogging will be commencing on Mondays, September 19 in Wakefield and Fridays, September 23 in Salem, N.H. Pre-registration is not necessary. The Yankee Doodle Cloggers introduced the movement to New England and will be starting their eighth season.

Lunch program

The fall lunch program has resumed at the high school. The time the lunch will be serve this year has changed from 11:15 to 10:50 a.m., coffee will be served at 10:40 a.m. Please call the Center for a reservation. Remember if you are ordering an extra meal tell us when you call. No senior should order more than one extra meal.

Job openings

The Council has openings for two jobs. One is a hot lunch driver. It pays $15 a day and travel expenses of 22 cents a mile. The other is a respite care servicer it pays $5.75 an hour for four hours a day and travel expenses at 22 cents a mile. A car is a must for both jobs. If interested call or visit the coordiantor at the office for an interview.

Lawrence Welk Show

The buses will leave the Senior center Friday for the "Stars of the Lawrence Welk Show," at 11 a.m. Please park as you have in previous bus trips. Those arriving at the center first, park in the rear of the building behind the kitchen and card room. Pull up as far as you can make two lines. After that area has been filled, park along the back and left side of the parking lot.

Do not park in around any area of the building that has a no parking sign. Do not park on the street, the Swain School parking area is available. Those who are not attending the social would be wise to park in the Swain School area until the buses have left. When you arrive enter the Center and pick up your ticket after you have been checked off. Remain in the Center until we call for the buses. We don't want any senior in the parking lot when the buses are backing in

One person breaks the rule and others will follow. That is how accidents happen. The disabled bus will be boarded first. When we return to the Center no care is to leave the parking lot until all the buses have left the area. This is a therapeutic social remember no seats are to be saved on the bus or at the restaurant.

Fuel assistance

The fuel assistance program this year is being handled completely differently than in previous years. The number of employees at Community Teamwork ahs been cut back due to a shortage of funds for the program. This year's program will run from November 1 to March 31, cutting off three months.

Those seniors who qualified under the federal program for $750 last year will get only $675 this year. Those who qualified for $500 will get $450. Under the state program those who qualified for $325 last year will get only $300 this year.

Those who received assistance last year your name is being cleared through the computers at the Social Security. If the computers find that your income is the same as it was last year, you will receive your application in the mail. It will be all filled out except for your signature. These applications will be mailed either the last week of September of the first week of October. You are requested to sign it and return it as soon as you can so that you will be covered by the first of November.

Any oil ordered before that date will be your responsibility to pay. Most oil companies will send the bills to CTI but if they will not, it will be up to you to send it yourself. Colonial and Mass Gas companies will send the bills directly to CTI for payment.

As for those seniors who did not apply last year, I will be going to Lowell for a briefing on what the procedure will be for those applications in October.

Hurricane of 1938 was New England's worst

Church Street Fifty years ago, Charlie Black lived in this home on Church Street. When the hurricane roared through town, a large tree fell on the house. Today, electrician Bob Wright lives in the house

Wilmington fared well by comparison

The following account of the 1938 hurricane was taken from a newspaper clipping, possibly from the old Wilmington Mirror.

Hurricane leaves trail of wreckage and death...

Wednesday: The worst storm of its kind in history swept through New England leaving a trail of death and destruction mounting in the millions, much of it irreparable.

It will be days before the total amount of damage to life and property can be estimated as light, phone and telephone wires are down. Street cars, trains and buses stood stalled as the storm rose in all its fury to 90 miles an hour, tearing up poles, trees and even homes.

Thousands were marooned in cities as train service drew to a stand-still and roads became impassable due to falling trees and poles.

Adding to the misery of the hurricane came floods, fire, tidal waves and breaking dams. Many persons are missing in the Cape Cod district.

Southern New England states were hit as bad as the Cape section. Martial law was declared in many sections. Militia were on duty in Woburn, North Adams, Fall River, Northampton, Somerville, Worcester, Lowell, New Bedford, Melrose, Everett, Stoneham and Springfield.

Parts of Conn. and Rhode Island were isolated as tidal waves pounded the coast line.

Deaths were known to be over 500.

Wilmington fared well in comparison with many cities and towns although the damage is immense.

All available police and firemen wre on duty, as were the veterans organizatons, welfare workers and W.P.A.

Debris is fast being cleared up by local organizations. A falling tree snapped off, sending half of its trunk through the roof of Mrs. Olive Oman's home on Church Street.

The roof of the Lake School was torn off during the storm.

The Lake district was hard hit. Much of the damage is irreparable as many camps and year round homes were partially and wholly destroyed by falling trees and by poles.

A tree crashed on the roof of Mrs. Isabelle McMahon's home on Middlesex Avenue, causing considerable damage.

Dr. McDougall worked by candle light at the height of the storm on Wednesday, on a child birth case of Mrs. Sullivan of Milligan Grove.

Milligan Grove, one of the hardest hit spots in town, had to be cleared somewhat before the doctor could get into the house.

Mrs. Brennan of Grove Avenue was removed to St. John's Hospital Wednesday, by Officers McAndrews and Newcomb.

Tree Warden Babine and his crew of 30 men cleared the way of poles, trees and debris to get the ambulance through.

Ernest Eames hurt his shoulder Thursday while directing a work party, cleaning up debris on Middlesex Ave., near High Street.

Joe Galka was struck by a flying limb while doing duty near the Reading, Wilmington line early Thursday morning. His hand may be broken.

Large plate glass windows of the Saltonstall headquarters, Wilmington Centre, were blown out.

For the first time in the history of Wilmington, seagulls landed on Silver Lake. Forced inland by the storm, the gulls adopted the lake as a haven.

It is estimated that well over 1000 trees and 250 poles are down in Wilmington.

One of the most interesting things about the whole clamity is the good natured way in which the people have taken their misfortunes.

Another is a ride at night thru the dark streets, to see the candle lights flickering in windows, bringing us back to the days of mother and dad and kerosene lamps.

Near the common One of the more stately homes in town is the McMahon home, near the point of the common. The hurricane dropped an elm tree on the house, causing quite a bit of damage. The house was the site of the first Catholic Mass to be celebrated in Wilmington.

Grove Avenue The back porch of the Byrnes home on Grove Avenue took a direct hit from a large pine tree. Homes and cottages in the Silver Lake area were heavily damaged.

Burlington Avenue Like many streets in town, Burlington Avenue was completely blocked by downed trees. The photos on this page were taken by George Lynch of Grove Avenue.

Officer Jim Hanlon, Monday morning, while on traffic control on Lowell Street stopped a New Hampshire man for traffic violation. George Burns of Dover, New Hampshire was held on a Methuen Police warrant, and later released to Methuen officers.

Joseph Rizzo of Chelsea was arrested Monday night by Sgt. Rooney and Officer White, on the basis of a Wilmington warrant. He was held overnight, to appear in Woburn Court.

Tuesday, at 2 a.m. Officer Paul Jepson arrested Robert Evans, of Wedgewood Drive on the basis of a default warrant issued by the Stoneham and Everett Police Departments. He was bailed for a court appearance.

The distribution included $200 for Wilmington Pop Warner and $300 for Wilmington Youth Soccer. The Pine Street Inn in Boston, received $300; the Bridge, Inc., in Boston $500; and Choate Symmes Health Services, and Hospice Care in Arlington $700.

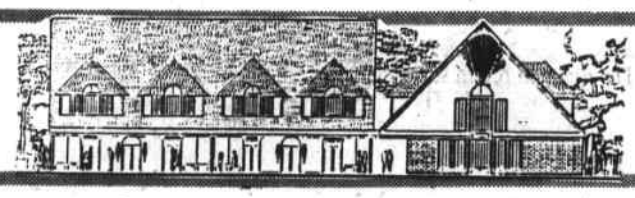

Fiske St. plans

Plans for a four-unit subdivision off Fiske Street were presented to the Tewksbury Planning Board this week, on a preliminary basis.

Three of the lots would be located on a small cul-de-sac street a few hundred away from the Baptist church, while a fourth house lot, of more than two acres in size, would abut the church property. The lots on the cul-de-sac would be 1.24 acres, 1.1 acres and 1.08 acres.

Engineer Dick Cuoco said sewer lines are being planned to service the properties, and the roadway will be 24 feet wide with a 22 foot travelled way. Cuoco added that the four-unit plan is not a part of another, bigger subdivision nearby.

A new beginning for Wildcats, Redmen

Redmen, Wildcats look to rebound

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Its' a new year filled with new attitudes, and hopefully, new beginnings for the Tewksbury Redmen (2-7-1 in 1987) and the Wilmington Wildcats (1-8-1) in the tough Merrimack Valley Football Conference.

The two archrivals combined for a dismal 3-15-2 record a year ago in finishing well back of eventual Division II champion Chelmsford.

Local fans were hard pressed to remember the last time the Redmen and the Wildcats played to avoid last place on Thanksgiving morning.

There is reason for hope given the fact that both teams pressed several underclassmen into action a year ago. The potential is there for decent rebounds by both clubs, but often potential just doesn't cut it in one of the most competitive football conferences in the state.

The league should be tightly bunched at the top again this year, with Chelmsford, Lowell, Dracut and Methuen the likely frontrunners for the championship run.

Wilmington Wildcats

The Wildcats have won one football game in two years and yes, they had only 40 players suit up for preseason practice.

But, there is reason for optimism, since this is basically a new group of players with several veterans around to remind the young guys that losing really isn't much fun.

Coach Ed Harrison's team broke their New Hampshire camp with a defensive-dominated scrimmage against NH State Championship contender Kennett High School.

The Wildcat defense was solid, leading the faithful to hope that this unit can keep WHS in games while the offense develops around junior quarterback Frank Cenca.

That offense returns senior guard John Rago (5'8", 175), senior split end Joe Spencer (5'7", 145) and senior tightend Steve Hanafin (6'0", 185 to the starting lineup. Of course those three vets will double up defensively, with Rago at linebacker, Spencer cornerback and Hanafin also at linebacker.

Wilmington's mainstays on defense will be senior safety Tony DeLucia (5'10", 155) and junior tackle Dick Hersom (5'9", 170).

The other returning WHS lettermen are junior Steve Killilea (CB) and senior Kevin Brennan (HB, CB).

Following the Kennett scrimmage in Conway two weeks ago, Harrison was taking a realistic approach entering the 1988 season. "The defense is ahead of the offense, but that's to be expected at this time of year," noted the Wildcat coach.

"Offensively, we have a lot of work to do. There were a lot of mental errors out there today, " said Harrison. "Defensively, I think we've done pretty well. The offense is going to get a lot better than this. I hope that they get a little upset with themselves. The first offense will show a lot more than they did today. Defensively, we are a solid team."

That defense is definitely the key to any success that the Wildcats will have this season.

Tewksbury Redmen

Coach Bob Aylward suffered through a rare losing season, as his Redmen were plagued by early injuries and dropped passes that consistently spoiled the effort of a tough defense that should be just as stingy this season.

Tewksbury's underclassmen were force fed when the wave of injuries hit, and because of that necessity, the Redmen have a senior-laden team with good game experience.

The Redmen return seven starters on offense and five more defensively, with only one junior listed among those players.

Senior quarterback Dave Boudreau (6'3", 175) returns to lead the TMHS offense along with senior running backs Tom Aylward (6'0", 180) and Chris Horgan (5'10", 165).

The offensive line returns four veterans led by senior tackles Hugh Fitzpatrick (6'0", 215) and Jeff Carr (6'2", 210), senior guard Tom Canerelli (6'0", 185) and junior center Glenn Harris (5'10", 185).

Aylward must find at least two people who can consistently catch the football. Last year the wide open Redmen attack was plagued by a bad case of the drops. The TMHS coach reports that John Miller and Tom Bradley both have shown an ability to catch the ball in scrimmages with Austin Prep, Woburn and Gloucester.

Defensively, the Redmen should be very solid. Senior tackles Dave Carciofi (5'10", 200) and Keith DeSisto (6'0", 215) anchor the defensive line along with senior defensive end Jim Kelleher (5'10", 180). Seniors John Miller (5'11", 165) and Keith Sullivan (5'11", 165) are matching bookends in the defensive backfield.

The other returning lettermen for the Redmen who will battle for starting positions are seniors Scott Blades (G-LB), Elder Bettencourt (DL), Tom Bradley (DE), Scott Florio (DE), Dave Perry (DE-K), Arthur Piccollo (LB), and Jim Rogers (RB). The returning juniors include Sean Wilson (RB-K) and Dave Babine (DT).

Aylward came back from the team's preseason camp with an injury-free, optimistic report on a team that he hopes can make a run at the conference big boys.

His one major disapointment was the fact that tailback Rob Lombardi decided not to tryout for the team after sitting out last season following reconstructive knee surgery.

The Tewksbury offense is missing that one speed back (Lombardi) that could shift the offense into high gear.

Now the Redmen will look for consistency that will directly relate to the development of Boudreau and his receivers.

For if the Redmen don't catch the football this season, they won't win many games. It's that simple.

MVC football preview

A 'blanket' race for the title

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Get ready to throw a blanket over the top four football teams in the Merrimack Valley Conference. Its' that close.

Chelmsford, the defending Division II champion, is the logical favorite despite losing many senior starters to graduation. Closing fast are Lowell, Methuen, Dracut and possibly even a senior-led Tewksbury squad.

One MVC coach gives the Redmen a legitimate shot at the championship. "You've got to go with Chelmsford, Lowell and Tewksbury as the top three teams," predicts Wilmington High School head coach Ed Harrison.

The WHS coach likes Tewksbury's ability to bounce back after a tough (2-7-1) season. "Tewksbury should be fairly strong. They've always been able to bounce back after a losing season," noted Harrison.

Lowell will be set back slightly by the teachers' strike, but after last year's injury-riddled season, the practice delay just might be a blessing in disguise for coach Walter Nelson.

Methuen has good size up front; Dracut returns everyone from a year ago; Haverhill is a big and improved; Central is talking about making that long step up to contention; while Andover, Billerica and Wilmington are all looking for young players to step into key positions. Lawrence will have trouble scoring a touchdown on most afternoons. A look at the teams with last year's record in parenthesis.

1. Chelmsford Lions (10-0-0)....Coach Tom Caito must come up with 22 touchdowns (graduated halfback Kyle Cripps) from among a group of talented underclassmen. The coach's son Tom will be the quarterback. The 5'11", 170 pound junior took over in the Super Bowl and really earned his stripes replacing the injured Dan Keefe. The leader on defense is Mark Attenwig (DE, 6'1", 170, SR.). This team once again is big up front and has a very talented junior class.

2. Lowell Raiders (4-5-1)....Lowell perhaps has the best quarterback in the conference in senior Bill Rizos (6'0", 180). Injuries and tough defeats made for an off year in 1987. Halfback-linebacker David Slattery (6'2", 190) looks geared for an outstanding season. Good depth.

3. Methuen Rangers (7-3-0)....Coach Larry Klimas has consistently turned out solid teams. He says that he lost a lot of key seniors, but don't ask where the beef is...cause its' in Methuen. The offensive line boasts seniors Pat Keough (6'1", 215), Bill Hilchmoth (6'2", 210), Dave Mambro (5'7", 205) and Keith Neal (6'2", 200). That offensive line and the play of senior quarterback Matt Kelleher should be enough to put the Rangers close to the top.

4. Dracut Middies (5-5-0)....Coach Ed Murphy enters his forty-third year with a good shot at winning some of those close games that his team lost a year ago. The Middies are big and have good depth on both sides of the football. Senior quarterback Jeff Halko (5'9", 155) is very mobile and should have a fine season. Other top Middies include senior tackle James DeMarais (6'0", 240) and senior fullback David Smith (6'2", 195).

5. Tewksbury Redmen (2-7-1)....The Redmen need big years from Boudreau, the receivers and the defense to at least break .500.

6. Haverhill Hillies (4-5-1)....The Hillies have steadily improved under the guidance of coach Bob Pike. They are very big up front, with seven players over 230 pounds. The offense will be led by junior quarterback Brendan Skafas (5'11", 170) and running back Jeff DiBurro (6'0", 180).

7. Central Catholic Red Raiders (3-7-0)....The Red Raiders are optimistic after winning their final two games last season. Quarterback Chris Lane (6'0", 170) is ready for a big junior year, while senior tackle John LeBlanc (6'0", 215) is one of the leaders defensively.

8. Andover Golden Warriors (7-3-0)....A massive rebuilding job for coach Dick Collins. There is a real lack of experience up front. Senior fullback-linebacker Paul DeMarco (6'0", 210) is a nice player along with center Steve Kelley (6'1", 230).

9. Billerica Indians (5-4-1)....Senior quarterback Paul Laundry (6'0", 170) will be looking for ace receiver Jeff Gallison (5'9", 145). Coach Mike Esposito must find a replacement for talented fullback Joe Napoli. The Indians have a solid group of underclassmen.

10. Wilmington Wildcats (1-8-1)....The defense will carry the Wildcats. A first-year quarterback and a young team at key spots should make for a rebuilding year.

11. Lawrence Lancers (2-7-1)....Coach Steve Perocchi's team will have a tough time cracking the endzone despite the presence of senior quarterback Bill Bryant. Senior tackle Charles Guido (5'11", 200) leads a tough defense.

Wilmington Pop Warner

A' team blanks Reading

The A' team Pop Warner Wildcats got their season off to a solid start Sunday with a 12-0 victory over a tough Reading squad.

Offensively, Tom Killilea had an excellent game at running back, picking up 100 yards rushing and scoring one touchdown. Jason Morin also picked up a touchdown at running back. The offensive line did a very good job opening up large holes for the backs.

The defense also played very well. John O'Reilly had one sack and several solo tackles. Tom Aprile had an interception. Other standouts included Jason Morin, Eric Robbins and Chris Sullivan.

B team bows, 7-0

The B' team lost a tough game to Reading 7-0, despite some fine performances from Dan Ballou, Keith Pearlstein, Rick Blizzard and Ryan McNee.

Good offensive performances were turned in by quarterback Brian Tildsley, halfback Mike Alarnardo and linemen Vinnie Strow, Josh Levesque and Joey Lyman.

The B' team is looking forward to its' next opponent, Acton-Boxboro.

C squad wins squeaker

The Wildcat C' team won a 7-6 squeaker in Reading on Sunday. Running back Mike Gilbert scored the decisive touchdown.

Quarterback Dan Lutz had a good game on offense along with guard Dave Maglio and center Derek Riley.

A very tough defense was led by Joe Alonardo who recovered two fumbles. David Sullivan made two game saving tackles. Other standouts on defense were Jack Warford, Tim and Tom Rectenwald.

Dick Maynard and Phil Ritucci started both offensively and defensively and had excellent games.

Outdoors column

Outfished by a bird, and gladly

by Bill Conlon

Raptors, or birds of prey, are on the upswing once again.

A few decades ago, the pesticide DDT was in widespread use, to kill bugs in every location from farm fields to backyard gardens. Thanks in large part to the book "Silent Spring" by Rachel Carson, we quit using the evil stuff.

Fish, mammals and smaller birds ate the poisoned bugs, but their bodies didn't break down the DDT and it stayed in circulation in the food chain. Eventually the raptors ate the fish, mammals and small birds, and the DDT ended up in their systems as well.

DDT causes birds to lay eggs with terribly thin shells, and few young survive. In time, with no young birds coming on line, we finally noticed that there were fewer and fewer of the birds of prey across the country.

So, we finally outlawed DDT, and now the tide has turned in the right direction for the meat eating birds.

As with so many aspects of this Age of Technology, we just didn't know what we were doing wrong at the time. Now we know, so we corrected the problem. That lack of knowledge will happen again, and we need to keep our eyes open at all times and to all things for impact on the environment. We live in an age where nightmares become real, and with terrifying speed.

For the birds of prey, however, their nightmare is finally over.

Hawks circling overhead is not an unusual sight anymore. We're only now learning about the migratory patterns of hawks, but migrate they certainly do, late in the year. Oh, and their scream is nerve shaking.

The state's Division of Fisheries and Wildlife is justifiably proud of their efforts in bringing bald eagles back into the Commonwealth, most notably in and around the Quabbin Reservoir. The national symbol is alive and well in Massachusetts.

Just this past spring, a nesting pair of goshhawks along the Squannacook River kept chasing fly fishers and other intruders into the water. The state posted wardens to keep the newlyweds from bothering the humans, and vice versa.

Pigeons in major American cities once ruled the parking lots, but many now live in fear of the newly-returned falcons. In Salt Lake City, for example, the pigeons no longer fly off in loose gaggles. Now they stick close to the ground, with a lot of zig-zags in their flight. Awww.

But for those of us who fish, the osprey, better known as the fish hawk, is perhaps the most visible example that the raptors are back.

Primarily coastal birds, the white and black osprey sometimes hunt in fresh water instead of salt marshes. And with a wingspan of nearly four feet, they're tough to miss.

Since the osprey are expanding in both numbers and area, don't be too surprised if one appears at your favorite bass pond. You might be embarassed, but don't be surprised.

Back in the mid-1960s, before the osprey were literally wiped out, one big fish hawk used to work my favorite pond to feed its young. I have vivid memories of watching that bird pull one- and two- pound fish, mostly bass, from the same water that I was fruitlessly flailing.

Osprey like to circle high overhead, looking for fish hanging near the surface. (How they can even see a fish in the water from that altitude is a pure mystery, but it seems to work for them.) Once a target is picked, they swoop in low from the side, then dip their talons into the water and hoist out their catch. Not a single feather is dampened in the process, but bigger fish make them flap hard to get back up to altitude.

It's awfully embarassing to watch a bird catch fish left and right while you go empty-handed, but osprey will do it every time.

Another protection given to all birds of prey, from eagles to owls, are stiff federal penalties for killing or disturbing them. If a bird uses a set of steak-knives for toenails, just leave it the hell alone.

One minor amusement found in the return of the raptors comes when smaller birds, such as house sparrows, decide they just don't want any predators in the neighborhood. The sparrows fearlessly dive to the attack, repeatedly swooping and pecking to chase the big brute away. But the raptor can't hope to match the sparrow's maneuverable, high-speed flight, and the smart money is on the sparrow. The scene looks like a swarm of fighter planes around a crippled bomber, and it's kind of fun to watch, really.

After a brush with extinction at the hand of man, the birds of prey are returning to their old hunting grounds. The majestic circling of a hawk, high overhead, is being seen more and more in the skies over New England.

And such a lovely sight it is.

– Tackle Box –

While I may be a member of the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers club, I'm not exactly sweet about the way they handle data from their derbies.

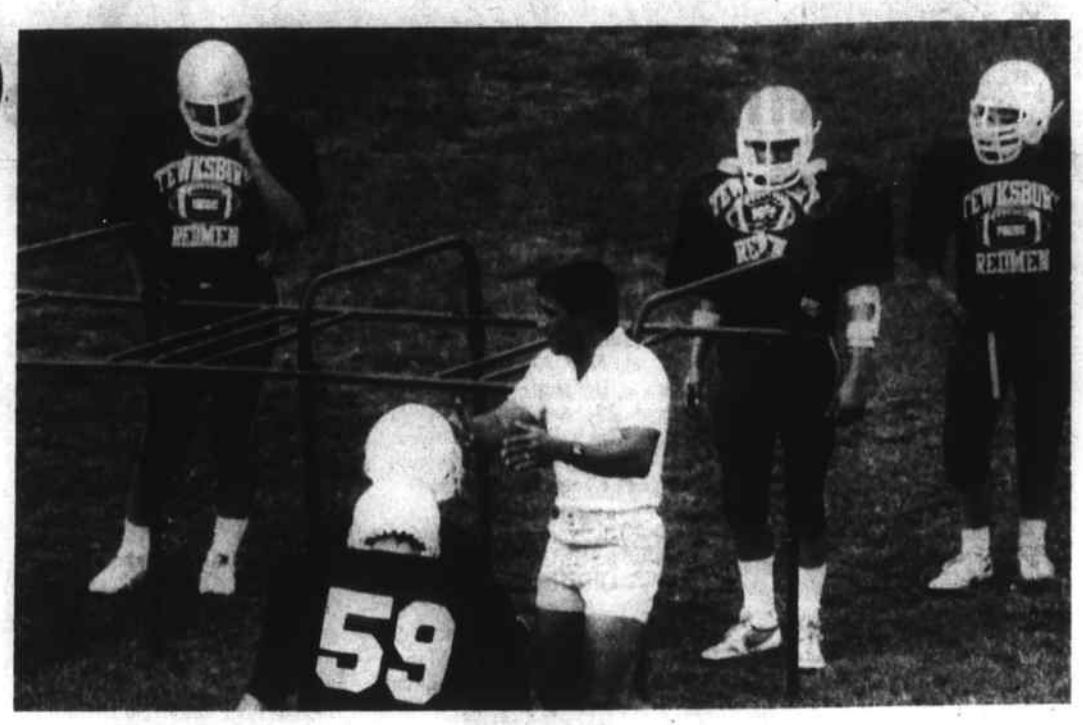

Look for results of the GLFF's Sunday derby on the Merrimack River in this space next week, as I'm baked if I could get the names in time for this week's paper. Guess I shoulda signed up and fished it.

Squirrel season is now open on the west side of Worcester, so it looks like hunting season is upon us. Also, Bub Manley at Tewksbury Town Hall said he's heading to New Hampshire for the start of the Granite State's bow season for deer this weekend. Hmm. I've still got to get in some kind of hiking shape.

However, fishing action is far from over. Deep sea fishing always improves in fall, after the doldrums of summer have passed by, and the freshwater bass are still up and active, although the night action has definitely cooled. (Pun intended, thank you.)

The New England Bass Angling Association is getting ready for a rather big-league bass fishing event for later this month. On Sunday, September 25, NEBAA will host a two-man team derby on Forge Pond in Littleton, with an entry fee of $100 per team. The pond may be found by taking I-495 south to the Route 225 - Boston Road exit, turn left at the bottom of the ramp, then turn right onto Route 110 and look for Route 225 into Littleton. If you get close enough, ask any townie for final approach coordinates.

Brian Wheeler at the Stop 'n' Go sub-shop made an observation last week, and by Gum he's right. The geese are migrating already! On a recent late night fishing trip, my partner and I must have put up at least a hundred Canada geese on the pond (almost giving me a coronary in the process) but isn't this a bit early? If the migration is already underway, it might mean we have a nasty winter ahead.

Hoping the work pays off

Jim Kastritis, one of the hardest working assistant coaches in the MVC, hopes that all that work pays off when his offensive linemen fire off the football Saturday against the Methuen Rangers.

Pop Warner (from page 18)

The C' team is gearing up for their Sunday, September 18 game at Acton-Boxboro.

D team rolls, 34-6

The D' team opened with a convincing 34-6 win against Reading.

In the first game of the 1988 football season, Wilmington's D' team looked great against a small but scrappy Reading team. The offense was spearheaded by running back Billy Harrison who had three touchdowns.

Running backs Eric Clancy and Jimmy Butler also contributed one touchdown each.

The offensive line anchored by Adam Mazza, Steve Ritucci and Chris DiJulia performed exceptionally well, making large holes for the backs.

A tenacious defense led by linebacker Jamie Campbell along with Cliff Downs, Dennis Torpey and John Plunkett, swarmed over the Reading Ballcarriers.

The Wildcat cheerleading teams were all very enthusiastic. They all performed well and looked very sharp in their new uniforms. The players thank them for their hard work and support.

Boston's 4th film festival

It's slimmed down, but it's hanging on, at least for one more year. What with the sale of USA Cinemas to the Loew's theatre chain about six months ago, you can never tell what next year will bring, but for now, Boston will see its Fourth Annual Film Festival from September 15-22.

Gone is the overnight retrospective at the USA Charles Cinema and the various activities offered in past years by the Institute of Contemporary Art. The selection of films has been cut to about 35, half of what was offered last year. The festival was the brainchild of USA's former president and chief stockholder, A. Alan Friedberg. When the chain was sold, Loew's, a major player in the national market, had no responsibility to pick up the only festival in the country backed by a theatre chain. That it is still alive, even in truncated form, is only good news, because it means that 35 films which might never have played in this area will now be seen.

Aiding USA Cinemas in sponsoring the festival is The Boston Phoenix, Strawberries Records, Remy Martin, Waites Transportation, the Pan Am Shuttle, Le Meridien, Dannon and WFNX. Just as last year, any money made by the festival after expenses will be distributed to arts groups in Boston, such as the Boston Fund for the Arts. There will also be specific fundraisers during the week.

Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright, Sam Shepard, marks his directorial debut with "Far North," a tale of reunion starring Jessica Lange and Charles Durning. It will be screened after a benefit on opening night for the Institute of Contemporary Art (ICA). Tickets are $50, which include a party at the Meridien Hotel from 6-8 p.m. There are also $15 tickets, which include a smaller party at Arne's, Copley Place, prior to the 8:30 p.m. screening. You can only buy tickets for this event at the ICA, whose phone number is 266-5152.

Other benefits include a screening of "Vampire's Kiss" for the Boston Film and Video Foundation on September 16, with the party slated to be held at Axis. The Museum of Fine Arts will benefit from a screening of Paul Cox's "Vincent," about the life of painter Vincent Van Gogh, on September 16 at the museum. It is the only festival movie to be shown outside of Copley Place. John Sayles' film about the Chicago Black Sox baseball scandal, "Eight Men Out," will benefit the New England Sports Museum on September 21. Tickets are expected to go for $15.

Solace, an organization of murder victim's families against the death penalty, will benefit from a screening of "The Thin Blue Line" on September 22. This benefit is $15 per ticket and there will be a party prior to the screening at Arne's.

Many actors, producers and directors will be in town, presenting their films and attending festival related parties. Expected, but of course, not set in stone, is Charles Durning from "Far North," Mira Nair, director of "Salaam, Bombay" and producer Tim Bevan and director Bernard Rose from "Paperhouse," all on opening night.

Tom Waits is expected to attend the festival for his concert film "Big Time," as is the director and adaptor of "Little Dorrit" Christine Edzard. Also planning to attend are Bob Bierman and producer Barbara Zitwer from "Vampire's Kiss," Dusan Makavejev, director of "Manifesto," director Joan Micklin Silver and actor Peter Riegert from "Crossing Delancy, Lukas Haas, the child star of "The Wizard of Loneliness" and

It's a sale and it's a party - a 10-day gala celebration to kick off Woburn Mall's 10th year and emergence as the "friendly mall where shopping is always a pleasure."

On a quest for a G.I. Joe book and velcro Jox, Mom and son amble down the path and around the corner, pedestrian traffic strolling beside them. Sister is off on a separate mission - a "Guns N' Roses" T-shirt, black nail polish and a snake ring.

Woburn Mall, the friendly mall where babies groove on the lights and action; pre-teens meander safely, Slush Puppies in hand; teens discover that perfect tote in one shop, socks to match next door; dad is at home in Lechmere; and grandma basks in the comfort of perfect weather, regardless of oven or ice outside.

Assertiveness Training Workshop

When people say something to you that leaves you feeling hurt, angry or resentful, do you feel like "kicking yourself" because you didn't know how to respond? Or do you "explode" by becoming angry or resentful yourself? Neither of these behaviors furthers the communication process, and in fact, may lead to a tense or ending relationship.

To help people improve their communication skills and deal with others at difficult times, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington's Community Health Education Department is sponsoring an Assertiveness Training Workshop for five consecutive Thursdays, September 29, October 6, 13, 20 and 27 from 7 to 9 p.m. (conducted by Susanne Trudeau).

Assertiveness is the ability to express one's feelings in an open, honest, positive manner when appropriate, whether those feelings are negative or positive. An assertive person is able to express anger and resentment without feelings of hostility or guilt.

Lack of these assertiveness skills are a cause of stress and frustration because the person who holds back his or her feelings and thoughts usually doesn't get his needs or goals met. These feelings can eventually "explode," alienating others.

On the other side of the spectrum is the aggressive person who tends to say too much, can be tactless and a poor listener, thus alienating others.

Both the passive and aggressive types can benefit from an assertiveness training workshop where they can learn to express themselves more positively and where they will learn active listening skills and how to respond to others who are angry or upset.

The workshop will be limited to 15 participants so there will be ample time for practice sessions.

Pre-registration is required by calling 657-3910, ext. 567. This is a program which will actually help improve your communication skills in order to improve relationships, increase confidence, reduce stress and help you get your needs met!

ABOUT THE TOWNS

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

LYNNFIELD — Voting unanimously to adopt an affirmative action policy statement, the Lynnfield Board of Selectmen named Executive Assistant David Rodham Lynnfield's Affirmative Action Officer.

"Adoption of the policy only makes official what the town has been practicing for years," says Selectman Chairman John Donegan.

WILMINGTON — The Wilmington Industrial Awareness Response Group - an organization composed of several local industries concerned with public safety - voted recently to commit $5,000 to the purchase of a MacIntosh computer for the town.

The computer will be used in conjunction with CAMEO, a program designed to provide evacuation information to emergency responders in case of a chemical spill.

CAMEO lists 2,600 chemicals found in Massachusetts industries and shows the location of extremely hazardous substances in town, local truck routes, wind direction, speed, and inversion layers.

The Wilmington Fire Department will house the computer.

STONEHAM — After losing approximately $160,000 last year because of a lack of ridership on the Stoneham line, the owner of Hudson Bus Lines has decided to continue the present bus service in Stoneham for at least two more months - while the town explores alternatives to finance part of that service.

Earlier this year, service was reduced to rush hours only. The Stoneham run represents 65 percent of the commute to Boston; the remainder of the route is in Medford.

The town is expected to ask Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford and Redstone Plaza officials for help since they are major beneficiaries of the service. Other action on the matter involves citizen petitions and possible Town Meeting appropriations.

WINCHESTER — After a four-year often heated debate, the Winchester Housing Authority has signed a contract allowing construction to begin on five new units of low-cost housing.

The units are part of an agreement between the housing authority and the Executive Office of Communities and Development to provide seven units of Chapter 705 affordable housing. By finally complying with state regulations, Winchester may be eligible for substantial state funds for other town projects.

WAKEFIELD — Not necessarily the news: rumor has it that The Flatley Company, new owners of the Colonial Hilton Hotel complex in Lynnfield and Wakefield, are now planning to construct a massive condo project on a part of the property. Estimates following the above unconfirmed, unofficial report are that several hundred to 1,000 units may - or may not - be built.

And you didn't even read it here first.

FM TALK: Our galivanting-around correspondent is on special assignment this week, so unil his return here is yet another edition of off-beat tidbits on American history to keep you readers busy:

In Joseph Kane's "Facts About the Presidents," Kane describes what it was like to run for the presidency in 1855 by recounting a little-known incident which occurred to Andrew Johnson while he was on the campaign trail. Johnson had received a death threat from a would-be assassin. Johnson, who was as tough a Tennessean as Andrew Jackson, challenged the would-be assassin to meet him face- to-face. At a campaign stop, one at which Johnson had challenged his nemesis to confront him, Johnson began his speech by first setting a pistol down in front of him. He then informed his audience that part of the reason for his being there on that day was to be assassinated, and respectfully proposed that the first order of business be for that man who intended to kill him to come forward. Johnson concluded his challenge by adding, "I do not say to him let him speak, but let him shoot."

In "Mighty Stonewall," Frank F. Vandiver recalls what a terrible teacher Stonewall Jackson was. Prior to the Civil War, Jackson taught mathematics at Virginia Military Institute, students at VMI despised Jackson so much that one day several of them plotted to seriously hurt the general who'd earned so much recognition during the Mexican War. As Jackson walked past one of the campus barracks, the angry students dropped a brick on Jackson from a third story window. The brick hit the brim of Jackson's hat, narrowly missing the top of his head. Jackson, it is reported in Vandiver's biography, never missed a beat, and kept walking without ever halting to look up to see who dropped the brick. Interestingly enough, many of those students who hated Jackson so much as a teacher served proudly under him during the Civil War.

One of the strangest stories to come out of the nineteenth century involved the mother of Robert E. Lee.The famous general's mother suffered from catatonic trances. During one of them she was accidentally pronounced dead. As dirt was being thrown on top of Mrs. Lee's coffin, a sexton heard scratching noises coming from inside it. The coffin was removed from the grave and Mrs. Lee was saved. She went on to live several more years. According to Mary Cable, who authored a book entitled "American Manners and Morals," the threat of being buried alive was so great at that time that the invention of devices to prevent it began to crop up everywhere. One such device was a coffin equipped with bells which rang above ground. Another was a coffin which consisted of ventilators and a hose that connected the buried individual to the outside world.

On February 1, 1860, a freshman Congressman was elected as Speaker of the House. He was William Pennington of New Jersey, and how he became Speaker is quite interesting. On December 5 of the previous year, the House of Representatives met to select a Speaker. There were 16 men competing for the job, but after a ballot, not one of them was elected. So the House adjourned till the next day when they tried once again to select a Speaker. Numerous votes were taken, but still no Speaker had been elected. Numerous proposals were put forth in an effort to narrow down a candidate. Among them was to eliminate a candidate by considering his taste in books. That didn't go over. Another was to eliminate any candidate who was in favor of slavery. Still no success in choosing a Speaker. They considered eliminating any man who was against slavery. After more than 40 ballots the House still had no Speaker. The controversial balloting carried over till the end of January, at which time the House decided it needed to select a man who had no enemies or history at all.So they convened on the first day of February and voted in the freshman Congressman from New Jersey as the new Speaker of the House.

In "The Founding Finaglers," Nathan Miller notes that Andrew Jackson went down in history as the president who replaced more political appointees than any other president. Indeed, Jackson was tough: he threw out 252 Republican appointees and replaced them with Democrats. The truth is Thomas Jefferson threw out more appointees than Old Hickory. Jefferson replaced more than half of the appointees made by the previous administration.

Make it a good week.

Woburn Mall 10th anniversary

up to the grand prize drawing on Saturday - a seven-day vacation and cruise for two, destination Disney World and beyond; all - and mom and dad, that means All - expenses paid.

And if you don't win that cruise, why you can take yourselves and family on a mini-vacation in the neighborhood, Woburn Mall, the friendly mall, the neighborhood mall where shopping is a pleasure for every member of the family.

Woburn Mall is happening here and now, the ultimate living museum of communal pop culture. Its independent mom and pop stores link with the chains to frame a collective monument to the shared shopping experience. Look sharp now - if 1989 is anywhere already, it's here, just around the corner, at your local community mall.

The landscaping is new, inside and out; the 39 stores in tip-top shape, 1,450 parking places available. Coming up are a home show; psychic fair; stamp, coin and collectible show; and a Halloween costume contest for the kids. The sights and scenes of Christmas will be bigger and better this year - kiosks and pushcarts and Santa amidst 400 or so poinsettias. Color and warmth and family. The friendly mall.

Seven-year manager Joe Maniscalco dispenses quickly with its history: "The only changes have been new stores coming in and others going out. When K-Mart exited and Lechmere moved in, the mall really took off.

"When Howland decided to vacate due to another corporate decision, we were very fortunate to get Fabric Place," he continues. "Lechmere and Fabric Place as our two anchor stores really enhanced the mall."

"Fabric Place has three stores and this is one of the best. Lechmere, Fabric Place, CVS, and Market Basket are tremendous assets to the mall," says mall marketing director Ray Warren. "Of course, McDonald's is a big draw, too. That's one of its best stores in the East . . . east of 128 . . . east of Reading . . . well, east of Mishawam Road. It's a popular meeting place."

The friendly mall. Maintenance, security, a secretary - a total of 12 actual "mall" employees, friendly and courteous, doing their best. Managed from afar since January of '87 by Melvin Simon & Associates, Inc., the top of the top five developers in the country in the areas of accessibility, flexibility, marketing support, physical supports, community relations, creativity, and innovation - as determined by a survey run by the industry magazine "Chain Store Age Executive."

"Here's a card we just got from a customer thanking one of the guards for 'his kindness and assistance' on Saturday," says Maniscalco. "She wrote 'It was greatly appreciated and makes shopping at the mall a pleasure, knowing someone will be there all the time like Michael.'

"The Woburn police are very helpful to us," he continues. "They're around when you need them and the firemen are here at the flick of a switch."

The mall is clean and well kept, a tribute to the maintenance staff who seem to be everywhere, their rolling carts and baskets brimming with repair and cleaning equipment. A cart rolls by, a fluorescent fixture jutting over the top. "I finally saw the light," reports Ed Graziano of Woburn as he patrols the corridors for what needs shining or straightening or fixing.

Ruthann Wood of Stoneham, manager of James Card & Gift has been in the mall for five years. "This has always been one of the productive stores in the mall. We get a lot of positive feedback on the image and decor. Customers are always commenting on the service. We're willing to order and do whatever they want.

"We only get happy customers," continues Wood, the mall personality of the quarter and treasurer of the merchants' association. "We were one of the original stores and we have a very happy staff."

"A slap happy staff," adds Annette Weisse of North Reading as they re-arrange a card display.

Barry Delaney of Custom Tee's, president of the merchants' association, says, "It's a very friendly place. What's great for me about this mall is the industrial park around us. We do a lot of custom screen printing for clubs, leagues and sports teams. That's my real plus - and the kids who buy my concert shirts.

Delaney has been in the mall for four years, does a pile of custom lettering, special sayings, whatever you want while you wait. "I do a lot of birthday shirts," he says, "for 40th and 50th birthdays. Some days, I do 15 or 20 shirts just for a 40th birthday. If it weren't for concert shirts, my average customer would be a 35-year-old woman."

At Woburn Mall, Guns N' Roses T's are still going well. California Raisins are slowing down. Comic collectibles and the Celtics are always big. Just catch the green glow of that new Garfield Celtic shirt. The help situation at Custom Tee's reflects that in any neighborhood shop these days: Delaney and his son are very often seen at work in their store.

Pleasure Travel has been there since the mall opened, doing really well in both retail and group business. "Exposure to the other stores and the anchor stores helps," says Neil Lucozzi. "People like malls because of the air conditioning and for shelter in the winter. The other stores in here do an excellent job and bring people back. A lot of the business we do is repeat business, and that's good advertising right there."

"It's something to do on Sunday," says Warren. "Walking the malls and in the hot weather, just sitting on the benches. The merchants all get along with each other. It's a very friendly group."

Yin Yong, in his third year at the Wonder Wok, reports also that business is good. In fact, it's better than last year's. "It was so hot this summer that everyone stayed in the mall. In cold weather, it's always busy," he says.

At lunchtime, customers from the local offices fill his place. Throughout the afternoon, the mall workers trickle in and out. The four hotels in the area help also. "People take a walk and they spend money," says Yong. "Usually, we have a full house and get big orders from companies and local offices - sometimes orders for 10 or 15. Everything is fresh cooked."

In fact, Maniscalco is at the Wonder Wok right now, absorbed in his break, oblivious to Warren's leading question: "Who's watching the store? "

Manager of the Paperback Booksmith for nine years before a recent promotion, Jean Sweeney of Reading says, "Business has steadily increased. Customers come from all over, especially workers during lunch. Our main base of customers comes from Woburn, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, and surrounding towns."

Sweeney is also the general manager of the Paperback Booksmith at Liberty Tree Mall. "Because of the size of Woburn Mall, most people know one another here," she says. "You get to know the workers in the other stores and other managers, everyone from maintenance to security to customers."

Woburn Mall, the friendly mall. "Whenever there's anything you don't see here that you'd like, we'll definitely special order it and you'll get it within three or four days," she says.

Where shopping is a pleasure. "We will do anything to help our customers."

The Woburn Mall family, at your service all, invites you to party at any of the following locations. Establishments there since just about day one include Cookies Cook'n, CVS, Frederick's, Garden of Eden, General Nutrition Center, James Card & Gift, Jewelry Bazaar, McDonald's, My Store for Levi's, Northern Bank and Trust, Paperback Booksmith, Pleasure Travel, P'zazz Gifts, Scott Jewelry, Thom McAn, Thackeray's, and Woburn Five.

Newer comers are Adams Clothing, A la Mode, Crown Shoes, Custom Tee's, Deb, Fabric Place, Foxmoor, Hit or Miss, Lechmere, Locks N'Keys, Marianne's, Market Basket, My Hero, Opticians 3, Papa Gino, Performance Plus, Radio Shack, Ritz Camera, Something Sweet, Tobacco Shed, and Wonder Wok.

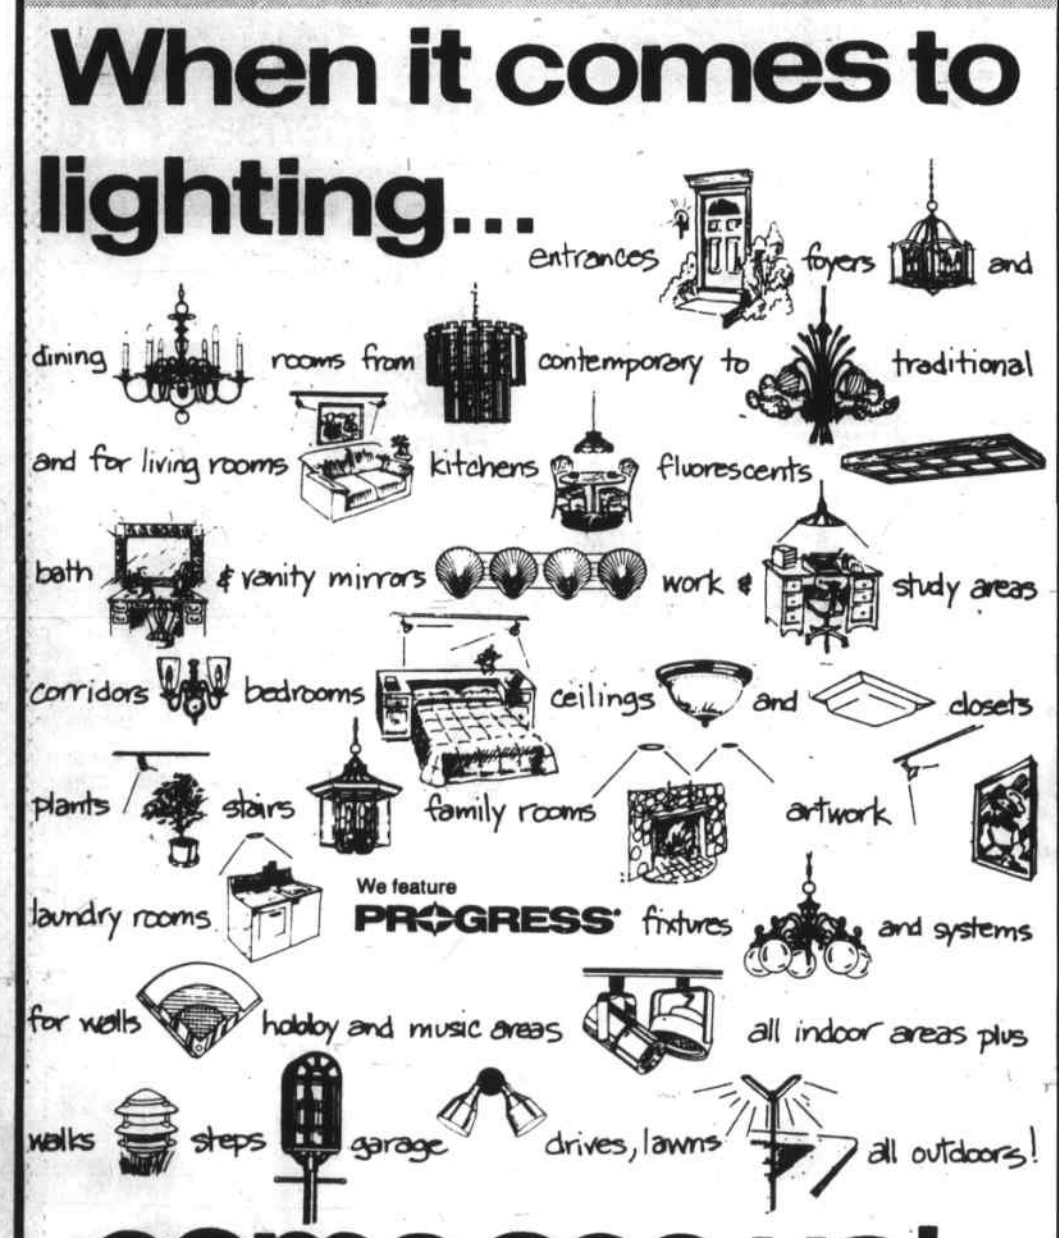

About six stores have completely remodeled during the past year. "When they start remodeling," says Warren, "that means they're satisfied with the mall. It means they want to stay. The big difference between this and the mega malls is the friendliness and the atmosphere."

Woburn Mall, the friendly mall where shopping is a pleasure. Ten years old and celebrating. Come on down!

TAX SCHOOL THROUGHOUT ESSEX AND MIDDLESEX COUNTIES

The only sure thing about tax laws is that they seemingly change from year to year. That's why so many people annually enroll in the H & R Block Tax Course.

This year's classes will introduce participants to the latest tax laws. Students include homemakers preparing for new careers, retirees preparing for second careers, and people just interested in learning more about tax return preparation. Many professional tax practitioners were first introduced to their profession through the H & R Block Tax Course.

H & R Block has been teaching Americans how to prepare individual tax returns for 22 years. Its highly respected course provides successful graduates with Certificates of Achievement and 7.5 units of continuing education credit. Block is, however, under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with Block.

This year's 13-week course starts on September 12. One low fee includes materials, supplies, and text books. Students may choose from morning, evening or Saturday classes.

QUILT CONTINUES

The AIDS Memorial Quilt will be displayed in Washington, D.C. on Saturday and Sunday, October 8 and 9 as part of a national AIDS Awareness weekend.

Some 52,000 New Englanders saw a portion of the Quilt (about 200 panels) when it was in Boston in June — now the nation has a chance to see the entire Names Project Quilt.

The Quilt is expected to be some 15,000 panels large — it will stretch from the Washington Monument to the steps of the Capitol, covering the entire National Mall.

On Saturday it will be unfolded at dawn and the reading of names will commence. This is expected to consume the entire day. The Quilt will be refolded at dusk and a candlelight march will begin at the Quilt site and conclude at the Lincoln Memorial. The march will be led by parents of people with AIDS.

On Sunday, the Quilt will again be unfolded at dawn. There will be an interfaith AIDS Memorial Service at the National Cathedral at 6:30 p.m.

On Monday there will be an all-day National Parents Conference on AIDS.

For more information about the weekend, or to find out how you can be a volunteer, call the Names Project/New England at (617) 451-9003.

MOTHERS OF TWINS

The North Suburban Mothers of Twins will hold their first monthly meeting of the 1988-1989 season on Tuesday, September 20 at 7:45 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, corner of Lafayette and Common streets, Wakefield. For more information, please contact Arlene Maloney at 657-7714.

Boston's 4th film festival

From S-1

Sylvia Tortosa, star of "La Senyora." Festival organizers are also hoping to bring Nicolas Cage, who plays Manhattan's most eligible vampire in the comic thriller "Vampire's Kiss," to town in association with that film.

Director John Sayles and actor D.B. Sweeney, whose film "Eight Men Out" will be shown in the festival, are expected at the benefit for the New England Sports Museum. Errol Morris, director of "Thin Blue Line" will be in town on closing night, as will Margot Kidder, who is a supporter of Solace. Closing night festivities are also expected to include David Cronenberg, director of "Dead Ringers" and director Frank Martin and producer Joni Levin from the documentary "John Huston."

There will be receptions and parties for some of these films in which patrons can attend if they hold tickets to the specific film for which the party is held. Specific information will be available closer to the opening day.

While stars and directors and parties make the festival fun, the main reason to attend is, of course, the films themselves. While the list is shorter this year, there is still something for everyone. You like films that detour off the beaten track, then check out Nicolas Roeg's new fantasy, "Track 29" or his "Castaway," which has been humorously nicknamed "Edward Albee Meets Gilligan's Island." The King of Kinky, Ken Russell, takes on Bram Stoker with his "Lair of the White Worm." You want something to think about, there's the "Thin Blue Line" a semi-documentary film by Errol Morris that reconstructs a chilling murder investigation in Texas.

You like your movies long and arty? Catch "Little Dorrit," a British adaptation of the Dickens' classic that lasts, no kidding, for six hours. Mainstream? Okay, try "Crossing Delancy," in which Amy Irving stars as a career woman whose "Bubbie" finds her granddaughter a man with thehelp of a matchmaker. Or Richard Gere as a down-on-his-luck farmer in "Miles from Home" or "The Wizard of Loneliness" in which Lukas Haas tries to make peace with an imperfect world. David Cronenberg has another fright-flick out, "Dead Ringers" in which identical twin gynecologists start to unravel over the same woman. Several of Cronenberg's other films will also be shown, such as "The Brood" and "The Fly."

Other films of interest include "Salaam, Bombay," about street urchins in India, "Manifesto," a Yugoslavian sexual comedy about the attempted assassination of a European king, "Testimony," in which Ben Kingsley plays composer Dmitri Shostakovich and "Paperhouse," a psychological thriller about a young girl who escapes her harsh, everyday life by losing herself in a fantasy world. Also of interest is "We the Living," a 1942 film based on Ayn Rand's novel of post revolution Russia that, until recently, was thought to be lost forever. "Drowning by Numbers," by director Peter Greenaway, whose film "In the Belly of the Architect" played last year's festival, is also expected to be added to the roster.

You can purchase tickets individually the day of the performance for $6.50 each at USA Cinemas, Copley Place. Another option is to buy a coupon booklet. The producer's series booklet costs $100 and includes 20 admissions plus a ticket good for a festival T-shirt. The director's series coupon booklet costs $55 and is good for any 10 shows. The tickets do not guarantee seating, they simply get you into the theatre, so it wouldn't be a bad idea to show up a half-hour before the film starts and stake out a seat. You can buy the booklets, not individual coupons, at many USA Cinemas in Boston and Harvard Square. Individual coupons are only on sale at Copley Place the day of the performance, but you can buy them early in the day.

Remember, a film arrives at a festival with a lot of luck and the grace of the Big Booker in the Sky. Changes do occur, so for information and updates, call the Talking Phonebook/USA Cinemas Film Festival Hotline at 972-6000, extension 5900.

MOVIE REVIEWS

Moon over Parador

Moon Over Parador Starring Richard Dreyfuss, Sonia Braga, Raul Julia. Directed and produced by Paul Mazursky. Screenplay by Mazursky and Leon Capetanos. Rated PG-13 (profanity, some violence).

If you think about it, there's really very little difference between an actor and a president. Both have to learn their lines, please large crowds and bow when it's all over. They just do their jobs in front of different audiences.

Richard Dreyfuss portrays unemployed actor Jack Noah who crosses the line from plays to politics in Moon Over Parador. The only difference between his character and actors who have actually jumped from playbills to Congressional bills is that his Jack Noah can't tell anybody about the career change. No one, that is, other than his mistress (Sonia Braga) and the crooked chief of the secret police (Raul Julia).

After filming a quickie action flick in the Caribbean country of Parador, an Eden-like island plagued with political upset, Noah hangs around for Carnival. But when Parador's dictator keels over from a heart attack, Noah gets the part. It's not like anyone had to twist his arm to keep him in grease paint. Julia simply appeals to the massive, fragile egos all actors carry around as part of their psychological baggage. He reads some of the actors' better reviews to him, and Noah is hooked.

This side of Parador is clever satire that plays upon an actor's egotistical need for approval. It is exactly what we expect from director/writer Paul Mazursky, who gave us Down and Out in Beverly Hills. Dreyfuss is smart enough to know he's getting himself into trouble, but too neurotic to stop. Once he becomes dictator, Mazursky and co-writer Leon Capetanos try to thicken the plot with messages of social reform, but only end up replacing their funny commentary with sitcomish devices that do not work. Watching Dreyfuss conduct aerobics classes or swagger about is not humorous. And his desire to reform the government comes to the plot so late one would think it was tacked on as an afterthought.

As uneven as the story is, the cast remains strong throughout. Braga is stylish and funny as the dictator's mistress, and Julia imparts just the right note of sophistication and psychoses to his role as a power hungry cop. Even the smaller roles have been cast with interesting players, as Jonathan Winters, Charo, Polly Holliday and Fernando Rey all show up as servants or CIA agents. Mazursky also appears on screen, draped in black and teetering in high heels as the dictator's wretched shrew of a mother.

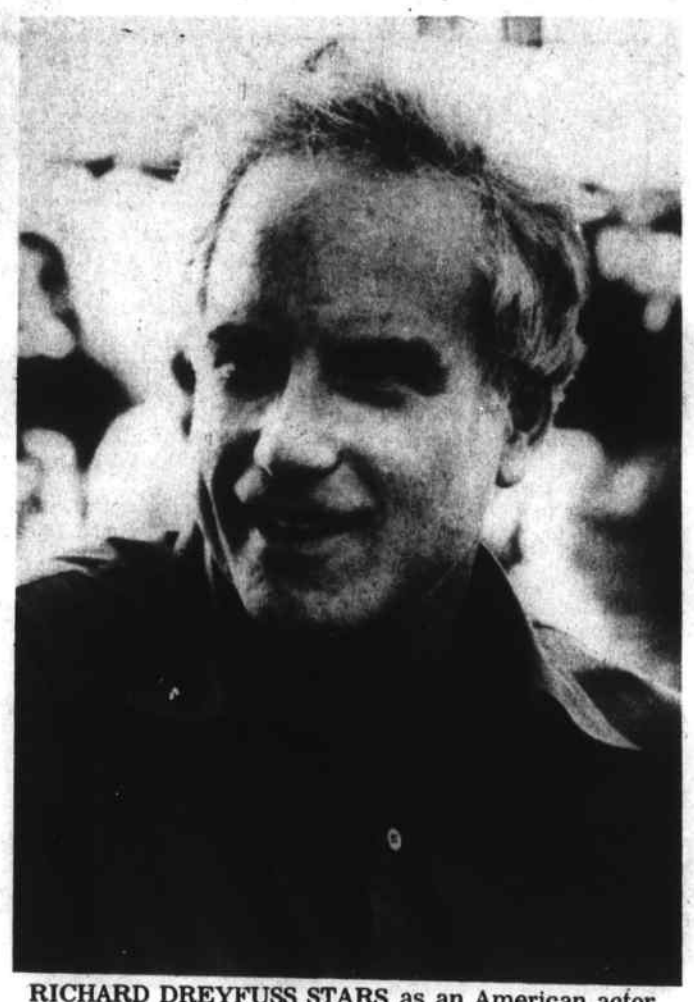

It's too bad Mazursky couldn't keep up the level of comedy he began with, as there is something very funny about watching Dreyfuss' Jack Noah done up in a fake mustache and darkened skin, reciting "political" messages to the Paradorians which he lifted right out of plays he'd appeared in. Of course, there are some who may not find humor with the notion that an unemployed actor can pass himself off as a president, but....

Short Takes

Young Guns is a mighty waste of young talent, as even the big-name cast can't lasso this dawg of a story. Emilio Estevez is quite good as the psychotic Billy the Kid in this period piece, but the excessively violent script and gaping plot holes bury the picture. Not helping is that the audience is supposed to sympathize with Billy's homicidal rampages because they are "justified." Doesn't work, fellas. Rated R. * ½

Betrayed takes a brutal look at racism in the Heartland, but is not the ride through hell director Costa-Gavras intended. Debra Winger plays a federal agent who tries to get the goods on Tom Beringer and his bigoted bunch. While certain scenes are searing in their cruelty, the total effect is blotted out by an unrealistic relationship between the two leads and a chain of events that unravels too quickly for us to believe. Rated R. * *

Married to the Mob is an entertaining romp through what could be a new sub-culture — upwardly mobile crooks. Michelle Pfeiffer plays the Mafia Mam who has had it with family life. Mathew Modine is the federal cop who thinks she's a murderess. Stealing the show is Dean Stockwell as a sleazo kingpin who tries really hard to make you think he's a nice guy. The plot doesn't hold up, but the characters are so funny you may not care. Rated R. * * *

Nightmare on Elm Street 4: The Dream Master is probably the best in the series about a ghoul named Freddy. This installment not only has a complete story, interesting characters and decent special effects, but it is really scary and not just a gross-out flick. Rated R. * * *

Stealing Home is kind of like one of those slice of life soda commercials that just never, ever ends. The core of the movie has Mark Harmon coming to terms with his past, but all the mini-plots leave this baseball, coming-of-age, "Big Chill" flick somewhere in left field. The only good news is that Jodie Foster does just fine. Rated PG-13 *

The Deceivers isn't the action/adventure epic of yore it pretends to be, so don't be taken in by the advertising. Pierce Brosnan just doesn't cut it as a dashing British soldier. He's far too stiff and regal for what should have been a grittier portrayal. Brosnan plays a 19th century detective out to uncover a cult of Indian murderers, but ends up on a pseudo-psychological journey that's just plain dumb. Forget about it. Rated PG-13. * ½

Last Temptation of Christ is a fascinating depiction of Christ as a mortal man who must face difficult and painful choices. The only problem with the Martin Scorsese production is that it's too long. As for the scene in which Christ hallucinates a family life for himself while he's hanging from the cross, it's hardly as offensive as anything you could see on the afternoon soaps. Actually, the film, which is based on a novel, successfully makes Christ accessible to the audience through everyday language and haunting, often sparse, settings. Rated R. * * * ½

Dear Betty Crocker

Q. How can I eliminate the space between the top crust and the apple filling in my apple pie? S.L.S., Evergreen Park, Il.

A. Layer apple slices in pie shell, make holes in top crust large enough to permit steam to escape and use tart, firm, juicy apples such as Cortland, Rhode Island Greening, McIntosh and Yellow Transparent or choose Golden Delicious, Jonathan or Rome Beauty.

Q. How do I keep raisins from becoming hard? F.S., Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Cover them tightly and store in a cool, dry place. They will keep for several months.

Q. How much sodium is there in saltwater fish? L.M.A., Chicago, Il.

A. Both fresh water and salt water fish and seafood are fairly low in sodium. Gill fish, such as cod and salmon, have 60 to 100 milligrams of sodium per a 3 1/2-ounce serving. Crustaceans and shellfish, such as lobster and oysters, are higher with 200 to 400 milligrams per 3 1/2-ounce serving.

FUTURE WORKFORCE NEEDS EDUCATION

Joseph V. Fischer, Regional Vice President of the National Alliance of Business (NAB), is urging New England business leaders to take an active role in the education of their future workforce as a means to close the growing gap between the demands of the contemporary job market and the skills offered by those coming into the labor force.

In a letter that went out recently to over 750 leading executives in the region, Fischer explains that on the demand side, the skill requirements of the job market are shifting markedly amid a general expansion of employment and rapidly changing technology. As a result, higher skill levels are required throughout our regional economy and job market.

On the supply side, the demographic profile of newcomers to the labor force reveals a substantial gap between what business needs from its employees and what many of these new workers can offer.

NAB's Regional Vice President asks business leaders to think "strategically" about an involvement with the educational system and offers them the assistance of the non-profit organization.

As the only business-led organization dedicated exclusively to bringing together the private and public sectors to deal with workforce issues and human capital development, NAB is already helping to motivate private sector participation in education.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—Congratulations to Woburn School Superintendent Paul Andrews on his election to a three-year term on the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents. He now represents the 37 school superintendents in the Merrimack Valley Roundtable.

The Mass. Association of School Superintendents provides professional services to school superintendents in Massachusetts, acts as a liaison to the State Department of Education and promotes the interest of public schools with the state legislature.

—Teacher appreciation was given new meaning this spring in Lynnfield when the PTO Teacher Recognition Day Committee not only honored the middle school teachers with a luncheon but gave them a $100 gift certificate with which to purchase "something" for the teachers' room.

—The Wakefield School Department is currently considering the addition of a language-based program designed for students with Attention Deficit Disorders, according to Dr. Rudy Feudo, Assistant Superintendent of Special Education Pupil Services.

At the present time, seven such students are placed in programs outside the community. The new program would follow a "magnet school concept" and be cost-effective because it would be internal.

Approximately 700 students in Wakefield are served by special education and while their number tends to remain constant, their percentage of the decreasing school population is increasing. During past years, the Wakefield High population has dropped from approximately 1,800 to below 1,000.

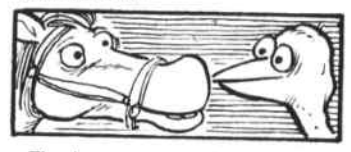

—Having completed its third year of participation in the College Board's Advanced Placement Program, the Stoneham School System has several students who now qualify for college credit - based on their high school advanced placement courses and their national exam scores.

All students taking the English composition and literature, Spanish, physics, and computer science exams received college credit scores, with several students reaching the highest possible score of "five."

The six students who received at least three scores of three or better : possibly qualifying them for sophomore standing - are Derek Abruzzese, Diana Ciarlone, Abe Chyung, Joyce Connery, Hideo Mabuchi, and Sharon Zaboly.

—Congratulations to the newest middle and high school members of the LaPierre Student Dance Company of Reading: Gwen Bourque of North Reading; Shanon Danehy of Wilmington; Denise Peary of Woburn; and Melissa Boyd, Krista Russo, Suzy Scott, and what is that last girl's name? - Melanie Nissen of Reading.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

We can't please everybody, so why even try? The best thing we can do when someone doesn't agree with what we write, do, or say, is validate our positions or change. I was invited to speak at the Beachmont V.F.W. Post 6712 recently. The hall was packed, with standing room only. I was doing great (at least I thought I was). I was including (now and then) some of the jokes, quips, and puns that appear from time to time in Woodchips. Then, some joker sitting in the front row let out a visable and audible yawn. I was stunned for a moment, then I stuttered, stumbled and struggled as I bravely tried to continue. Then I realized that over 900 people out there weren't yawning — why let one sleeping beauty throw me? I ended my talk saying, "The only time I get to open my mouth at my house is when I yawn."

Woodchips congratulates the Andover Little League team that played in the Nationals. However, I must admit that I have mixed emotions about Little League baseball, because many, many parents I know interfere with what is intended to be a fun game. It therefore becomes a game of intense rivalry between the parents of the teams playing. My sister, Maureen, for instance, screeched her head off when the coach told her son, Dennis Tully, to hold up at third base after hitting a terrific line drive to deep center field. Maureen had other ideas as she yelled for Dennis to make the turn at third and head for home. The poor kid was trapped between bases and was promptly tagged "out." Her temper matched the color of her flaming red hair, as she argued with the plate umpire, the coach and the fans. Folks, the game is okay, the umpires and coaches are more than okay, and the kids are super, but some of the parents should stay home and let the kids and most of the adults enjoy themselves.

A key chain is a gadget that allows us to lose several keys at the same time. Think, "young" folks, aging is for "wine, cheese and antiques."

Church bulletin: "Chicken dinner tonight, come in for a wing and a prayer!" Advice for executives over 50: "Keep an open mind and a closed refrigerator!" A halo doesn't have to slip very far to become a noose.

Joseph Foley Jr., the handsome young son of Joe and Patricia Foley from Tewksbury, described a baseball game he saw recently at Fenway Park: "The Red Sox were leading the Yankees for the first two boxes of popcorn, then the Yankees went ahead for two hot dogs and a root beer. The Red Sox came back later and won the game just as I finished eating a big bag of potato chips, and here I am home just in time for dinner.

Folks, some people think I'm wonderful. Some think Woodchipper is weird. Quite a few will perhaps think (after reading this chip) that I'm nuts. But the following really happened, as Lou O'Malley (as my passenger) and I were riding home from work last week. At a red light, the driver of a pick-up apparently took the last cigarette out of a hard pack box, then threw the box out on the pavement. Being a devout coward, I didn't get out of my car, but I did write down the truck's registration number. I told my cousin, Officer Kevin Fisher, about it and he called the party, telling him that a box fell out of his truck, and if he wanted it, to come to the station. The driver thought he had lost a tool box, and he did see Officer Fisher. After Kevin's lecture, I doubt if that gentleman will throw his empty cigarette boxes out on the street again. Okay, how would you have handled a situation like that?

Eli Whitney was a drinking man. He often shouted, "Get your hands off my cotton-picking gin!" Bob Giguere saw an American Indian coming out of a Red Cross blood drive center. He asked him, "Sir, are you a full-blooded Indian?" "No," he replied, "I'm one pint short." In an era when some marriages don't last 60 days, Woodchips congratulates Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Bishop of Stoneham, who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. I must compliment the photographer, the Stoneham Independent and most of all, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, for the brilliantly clear picture.

When my wife, Kathy told the photographer to make her look beautiful, he replied, "Ma'am, this camera takes pictures — it doesn't perform miracles!"

A son who had just become a new father sent this telegram to his mother, "Congratulations, Ma, you have just become a babysitter."

Uncle John Shea is over 85 years old. His prayer every day is, "I have been a great sinner. I don't deserve heaven. Please, let me stay here."

A plumber said to Aunt Nora of Wilmington, "Okay, the pipes are fixed. If you want to avoid future trouble, hide Frank Mazzoni's wrenches." Mario DiMino of Stoneham told his sweetheart years ago, "To show my great love for you, I'll swim the deepest river, I cross the longest desert and climb the highest mountain." When Mario finished doing all those heroic things, he came home and found his girlfriend, Angelina (who was tired of waiting for him) married with five kids.

Woodchips Personality Winners: Anthony Losanno, Lucille Orlandello, Ronald and Marilyn Yannetti (very colorful people, owners of Durant Paints), Atty. Myra Lyons, with the Melrose law firm of Killan & Cinella, David Elder, Linda Johnson, Karen Conroy, Mary Venezia, Julie O'Sullivan, Ira Somerset, Max Lager, Marty Dowgert, Carole Falco, Susan Small, Paula Fairfield, Christine Griffin, Jack Hamilton, Bruce Sturgeon, Rebecca Olin, Ricky Licari, Mary Kelley, Abby White, Dr. William Butler, Lisa Bradbury, Teresa Senna, and Katey Kennedy.

Many a man who fell in love with a dimple made the mistake of marrying the whole girl.

A clergyman was pleased to notice a stranger enter his church, pause a moment near the crowded rear pews, then march to one of the empty front pews (of which there were many). After the services, His Reverence made it a point to greet the visitor and said, "I was especially happy to see you come up front." "Well, Reverend," explained the visitor, "I've been a bus driver for over 20 years, and I wanted to see how you get so many people to move to the rear."

Folks, men do make passes at girls who wear glasses, especially if they have beautiful "frames." Years ago, when I was going to school, most of the kids would bring apples to the teachers. Today, some of them are sending them bananas.

"Get up, get up, John, or you will be late for school!" "I don't want to get up. The teachers all hate me, and the kids hate me, too. Ma, give me two reasons why I should get up and go to school." "Well," his mother said, "number I, you're 49 years old and number two, you're the principal!"

A baseball pitcher wins a game because he has eight other players to help him. A quarterback is considered great because of 10 teammates who block, run or catch forward passes. But folks, if ever a man is alone, it's when the bell rings for round one. A prizefighter wins or loses on his own. The great Joe Louis was asked, "Joe, of the many fights that you've had, who would you say hit you the hardest?" Joe was slow of speech but didn't hesitate a second, answering, "The gentleman at the I.R.S. office.

Woodchips' Star of the Week — Katey Kennedy.

Older homes may be better

Older homes sometimes offer many advantages over some of their newer counterparts, according to the Massachusetts Association of Realtors.

Many older homes are located in established neighborhoods where public transportation, shopping, schools and churches are just a walk away. These houses frequently offer more space for the money than new homes.

If you are thinking of buying an older home, here are some points to consider:

Find out the age and condition of the roof. Certain roofing materials are more durable: Slate and clay tile are your best bets because they often stay in good condition for 40 years or more. Wood and asbestos cement roofs may last up to 30 years, while common asphalt shingle roofing lasts anywhere from 15 to 30 years. Inspect the roof for loose or missing shingles; check the chimney for loose mortar.

Check gutters and downspouts. They should be clean, rust free and in good repair. Downspouts should empty onto splash blocks directed away from the house, into drains or an underground well. The ground should slope away from the house so that rainwater runs off.

Check the outside walls. If they're made of brick or stone, test the mortar — especially near the ground — with a screwdriver to see if it is firm or powdery. Crumbling mortar may let in water that can crack the masonry and damage interior walls. Bulging bricks could be a sign of structural defects or loose brick veneer. Non-masonry walls should fit well at joints and in corners since gaps give water a chance to rot the framing underneath. If painted walls show signs of blistering, flaking or peeling down to the wood, it could mean the walls were built with no vapor barrier.

Check the exterior wood elements, such as deck supports. They should rest on concrete to prevent rot and deter termites. Ask for a report on termite inspection and control.

Examine paved areas for cracks, uneven settling in the driveway, patios and sidewalks.

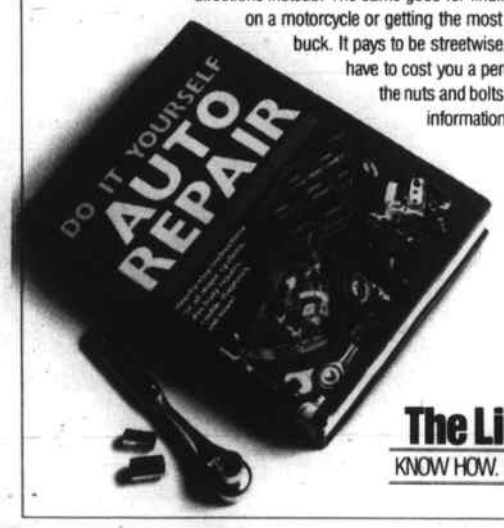

Visit the house after a rain to see how well the gutters, downspouts, runoffs and basement handle poor weather.

A sound exterior is a good indication that an older home may be a very good investment, but inside you will need to check the wiring, plumbing and heating system as well as other items you would inspect in a newer home.

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors says that a growing number of homebuyers are using the services of a home inspector before closing a sale since a professional inspection will provide an accurate appraisal of a home's physical condition.
